FTC Land Sales Accord Could Return Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today announced a landmark agreement which could reimburse land buyers for more than $17 million the commission estimates was the product of deceptive advertising.

The agreement was negotiated with GAC Corp. and two subsidiaries with one land development project in Arizona and nine in Florida.

The negotiated agreement between the FTC and the Miami-based company requires GAC to provide prominent warning statements in all future sales contracts and to offer refunds to eligible purchasers who default on payments in the Golden Gate Estates, River Ranch Acres and Remuda Ranch Grants subdivisions in Florida.

J. Thomas Rosch, head of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, estimated the refunds could cost GAC more than $17 million.

Future sales contracts used by GAC would contain the statement: "The future value of this land, like all undeveloped real estate, is uncertain." The contract would also grant purchasers the unconditional right to cancel with no penalty within 10 days.

The order would also provide various measures to allow buyers since certain dates to swap useless land they might be holding for more valuable lots.

The government sources said that the commission has probed other large land development companies and plans to crack down on several more firms.

"The shock wave that will go through the industry is going to be enormous," the source said.

Although GAC did not admit to violations of the law under the agreement, it has agreed to make restitution in the form of credits of other property to land buyers who can prove they have been wronged, the sources said.

In addition, the firm has agreed not to use the word "investment" in its future advertisements on land and has agreed to permit prospective land buyers a 10-day period in which they can call off the sales contract even after signing it.

Under current government regulations administered by the Housing and Urban Development Department, there is a 48-hour cooling-off period in which land buyers can back out of a sales contract, although this waiting period can be waived in certain circumstances.

The commission has been investigating deceptive advertising techniques in the interstate land sales business. According to sources, the commission usually goes after the biggest target in an industry to obtain a tough order, hoping to make it apply industry wide.

FTC spokesmen would not comment on the case for the record, but a source said the amount of restitution would run into the millions of dollars. He would give no precise total.

HUD's Office of Interstate Land Sales also declined comment on the case, with a spokesman saying the agency was sworn to secrecy.

The Securities and Exchange Commission also was pondering action, it was learned. The company is publicly owned.

The land sales office has tried to crack down on the multibillion dollar industry, where many land plots are bought sight unseen by purchasers under high-pressure sales pitches.

Federal rules call for land developers to deliver on any promised developments in an area and to let potential buyers know the exact nature of the property they are purchasing.

Mideast Likely To Be Topic Of Kremlin Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev met again today in the Kremlin for their second day of talks.

In addition to Kissinger's advisers on nuclear weapons and European problems, the American delegation included Alfred Atherton, the assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs. This indicated that Kissinger was urging Brezhnev to influence the Syrian government to accept a disengagement agreement with Israel.

The Soviet government announced today that President Hafez Assad of Syria would visit Moscow early next month. Western diplomats said he probably wants to consult with Brezhnev before the start of the disengagement negotiations in Washington.

Stung by Kissinger's success in arranging the Israeli withdrawal from the Suez Canal, the Russians have begun to claim a cardinal role in Middle East peacemaking. The Soviet press is declaring that no permanent settlement can be negotiated without Soviet participation.

This is coupled with press warnings of the dangers of a new war on the Golan Heights if an Israeli withdrawal is not achieved quickly. The newspaper Trud said today that "world public opinion" is "seriously concerned" about the recent intense artillery duels between the Israeli and Syrian forces. It said the Israelis "are playing with fire."

Soviet disenchantment with the new entente between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and the United States was evidenced in a short Tass dispatch from Beirut published by Pravda, the Communist party newspaper.

It said the Lebanese press had published an appeal by a group of prominent Lebanese officials to Sadat calling on him to put an end to attacks on his predecessor, the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

"This appeal was published in connection with the appearance recently of a number of articles aimed at Nasser and the policies he carried out," Tass said.

It was Nasser who aligned Egypt with the Soviet Union and opened the Middle East to Soviet influence in exchange for Soviet arms and Soviet aid in building the Aswan High Dam.

Meanwhile, a Soviet spokesman voiced the possibility that Kissinger during his current visit might be unable to lay the groundwork for another arms limitation agreement for President Nixon to sign when he visits Moscow next summer.

Conference Eyes Campaign Measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A bipartisan bill revising Ohio's campaign financing laws will go to a joint conference committee but Senate-house differences probably can be worked out in "15 or 20 minutes," one of its Senate sponsors says.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, made the optimistic prediction Monday night as the lawmakers opened their week's business with unusual Monday night floor sessions. They normally don't return from weekend recess until Tuesdays.

Van Meter, a co-sponsor along with Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, said some of the changes the Senate will insist upon are technical and came from the Legislative Service Commission too late to be included in the Senate version of the bill.

However, he said the Senate "probably will want to do something about Section Four," a controversial provision killed by the House that would—among other things—help to get Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, out of a serious political predicament.

In the House State Government Committee, an amendment was approved that would cut from five years to one year the penalty applied to political candidates who fail to file their personal campaign expense statements on time. The amendment was stricken, however, when the bill reached the House floor, by a vote of 64-29.

Lukens failed, it was charged, to get his statement into the Butler County board of Elections within 45 days after his election to a four-year Senate term in November 1972. He said it was mailed, and apparently did not reach the board in time.

Van Meter denied that the Senate, in seeking to restore the lesser penalty to the bill, is trying to take care of one of its own colleagues. "It doesn't just apply to Lukens, there are about 600 of them (people under the same penalty)," the Ashland lawmaker said.

Under the proposal Van Meter said will be made, the penalty would be one year from the effective date of the bill, rather than a year from the date on which the expense statement was due. The House committee chose the latter course and set off arguments about retroactive laws being unconstitutional. "They got hung up in that language," Van Meter said.

The financing bill is one of the priorities leaders have set on legislation they want through before the lawmakers recess for a month April 4 to hit their own campaign trails.

Panel Gets Secret Jury Report

WASHINGTON (AP) U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today turned over to lawyers from the House Judiciary Committee a satchel filled with grand jury evidence on President Nixon's alleged role in Watergate.

Sirica met with John Doar, chief counsel for the impeachment inquiry; Albert Jenner, minority counsel; and Peter Kreindler of the special prosecutor's office and went over the material in the dark brown satchel.

Doar, Jenner and Kreindler arrived at the judge's office minutes after the time he said he would deliver the material.

Sirica has described the material as focusing on the President and "bearing on matters within the primary jurisdiction of the committee in its current inquiry."

Lawyers for two defendants in the Watergate cover-up case gave up their attempts to block transmission of the report to the House after the U.S. Court of Appeals turned them down last Thursday.

The grand jury gave Sirica a sealed envelope and the satchel March 1, the same day it indicted seven former administration or campaign aides for allegedly trying to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Lawyers for two of the defendants, H. R. Haldeman and Gordon C. Strachan, tried to have Sirica's order reversed on the grounds that once given to a congressional committee, the contents of the report would leak out and possibly prejudice the cover-up trial.

The appeals court said such contentions were "premature at the least." The court said such claims should be based on what has actually happened rather than on what might occur.

During arguments before the appeals court, Philip A. Lacovara, counsel for the special prosecutor's office, said the sealed material included a letter of transmittal, a report that listed the items of evidence, and the evidence itself.

Sirica said the report "draws no accusatory conclusions ... It renders no moral or social judgments. The report is a simple and straight forward compilation of information gathered by the grand jury, and no more."

In addition to Haldeman and Strachan, the grand jury indicted John

D. Ehrlichman, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian, former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson and Kenneth W. Parkinson, former attorney for the President's re-election finance committee.

In a related matter, defendants in the White House plumbers case, in response to a judge's request for recommendations for a trial date, suggested dates ranging from next July 15 to March 1, 1975.

SBA Report Admits Trouble In Offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration has delivered a report to Congress that shows serious problems in nearly one-fourth of its offices.

A copy of the report obtained by The Associated Press shows problems ranging from high rates of bad loans to bank bailouts to what is called serious conflicts of interest.

The report was a 94-page section deleted from a city-by-city audit made public last Thursday.

Rep. Lawrence Williams, R-Pa., said Monday that SBA Administrator Thomas Kleppe had misled the news media with that report because the 94 pages were deleted.

Kleppe was unavailable for comment, but a top deputy disputed Williams' claims.

At the time the 59-city audit was made public, Kleppe had declared that "SBA has no more Richmonds" — a reference to scandals at the state office in Virginia, whose director had been fired.

He said the intensive, wide-ranging internal probe has "unearthed no serious problems other than the previously mentioned situation ..."

The 94-page section deleted from the full report contains auditors' comments that SBA offices in 13 cities showed evidence of "immediate serious problems. Only seven of the 59 cities were said to have no problems.

Williams, ranking Republican on the House Banking subcommittee that received the report, said that what Kleppe "told the press and what he told the Small Business subcommittee are not the same.

"In fact, the whole SBA handling of the report was designed to withhold the truth from the press," Williams said.

Assistant SBA Administrator Randall L. Woods said that when the full report was released "we indicated to the press, as well as the committee members, that the section on the mini-reviews was being extracted because it contained unsubstantiated, raw hand-written notations by our reviewers ..."

"To release this unsubstantiated material would have done grave and serious harm, we felt, to the small business involved," Woods said. "We

Ehrlichman, Colson, G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez and Felipe DeDiego are charged with violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. In addition, Ehrlichman is charged with lying to the FBI and a grand jury.

In another court filing, the special prosecutor's office asked the appeals court to deny Watergate conspirator James W. McCord's motion for reversal of his conviction on conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping charges.

Nude Couple Handcuffed

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Police rushed to a suburban home to find a man and his wife handcuffed together in the nude. Patrolman Fred Hansen said the embarrassed couple told him they were "fooling around" with a pair of handcuffs Sunday and locked each other to a ceiling-high bookcase. The husband said he accidentally dropped the key and his dog promptly swallowed it.

The couple managed to dial the telephone operator to request assistance. Hansen said he freed them with his own handcuff key. "I feel like kicking the hell out of that dog," the nude man said.

Pope Paul VI Said Ailing With Flu

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI is sick in bed again, the Vatican announced today. It was the second time in three weeks that the 76-year-old pontiff has been ill. The Vatican announcement said the Pope's doctors had ordered him to cancel his weekly public audience Wednesday. Vatican sources said he had a mild return of the influenza which hit him March 4-9.

LBJ Firm Gets Plane Rental From Milk Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's largest dairy cooperative, focus of Watergate investigations, pays Lady Bird Johnson's family corporation $94,000 a year for use of an airplane hanged at the LBJ Ranch, The Associated Press has learned.

A spokesman for the Johnson interests said the arrangement is a bargain for the dairy group, Associated Milk Producers Inc. However, the cooperative's board of directors had tried to end the lease arrangement, which is scheduled to run until April 5, 1976.

The lease arrangement was initiated by the co-op's former general manager, Harold S. Nelson, before he was ousted by the board for mismanagement.

Nelson originally agreed to pay $73,500 per year to lease a smaller, less expensive aircraft from the Texas Broadcasting Co., President Johnson's family corporation. That agreement was signed July 1, 1970, a year and a half after Johnson left office.

Details of the transactions between the milk producers and the Johnson interests are revealed in a report obtained from court records and confirmed independently by The Associated Press.

Donald S. Thomas, lawyer for the Johnson corporations, said in a telephone interview that he had negotiated both the original agreement and the present one with Nelson.

Thomas said the present agreement calls for one of the Johnson family corporations, Western Wildflower Corp., to pay for a pilot and hangar space for the $765,000 Beechcraft King Air model 100, a 13-passenger turboprop aircraft.

He said two other Johnson corporations, Karnack Corp. and LBJ Co., also purchase flight time. But he said the milk producers' co-op has first call on the airplane and in practice has had "virtually sole use of the aircraft."

He said that Mrs. Johnson had traveled personally on the aircraft on occasion.

The milk producers pay $10,000 per year for the insurance and other intangible expenses, plus $7,000 per month for a minimum 40 flying hours, at $175 an hour. The dairy cooperative pays another $175 for each flying hour over 40 hours per month, plus fuel and any extra expenses incurred by the pilot.

Thomas said the same aircraft under comparable conditions normally rents for $275 per flying hour.

He said the Johnson family hasn't benefited from the arrangement. "We haven't made money on the proposition. The statement has been made to me by my bookkeeper that it didn't cover the depreciation," he said.

The milk producers' headquarters is in San Antonio, Tex., roughly 50 air miles from the Johnson airstrip.

The cooperative's board originally tried to extricate itself from the airplane deal a few months before the original lease agreement, covering a cheaper version of the airplane model, expired June 30, 1972.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices showed little change in the stock market today as the lethargy that gripped the market about a week ago deepened.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials inched up .08 to 881.10, but declines had a small lead over advances in very light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the only activity of substance appeared to represent institutional adjusting of portfolios as the quarterly reporting date approaches.

Trans World Airlines, down 1/4 at 15 3/4, was the Big Board's most-active stock. A 149,900-share block of the issue was traded at 15 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .23 to 98.16.

The Amex volume leader was Syntex, down 2 at 57 1/2.

The NYSE's noon index of all its listed common stocks was up .08 to 52.24.

Groups Organize Anti-Litter Campaign

CLEAN-UP COMMITTEE—Preparing for the "anti-litter" campaign in conjunction with the annual Chamber of Commerce "clean-up" week, from the left, are: Judy Hall, Pickaway County Garden Club Anti-Litter Chairman; Jim Hall, Indian Guide's Paper Drive Chairman; Dan Smith, representing Scout Troop 205; Don Brandon, Chamber of Commerce, Community Appearance Committee Chairman.

The Pickaway County Garden Club is sponsoring an "anti-litter" campaign in conjunction with the annual Chamber of Commerce "clean-up" week, held the first week in May.

The YMCA Indian Guides will begin the "clean-up" week by sponsoring a paper drive 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 27. According to Jim Hall, paper drive chairman, the drive will cover Circleville, Ashville, Logan Elm and Knollwood areas. Rural residents can drop their papers off at the local YMCA or call 474-8621 to arrange for a paper pick-up.

Hall requests that papers be placed by the street curb and that everyone start saving papers and magazines now to help "recycle and save a tree."

Dan Smith, 121 E. Union, a member of Boy Scout Troop 205, is helping the Pickaway County Garden Club clean Stage's Pond and other creeks and streams. The scouts are cleaning out cement deposits and rubbish which have been discarded in the pond area.

Commissioners Purchase Road Sweeper

Pickaway County Commissioners Wayne Hines, Dick T. Tootle and L. Robert Liston Jr. Monday accepted the bid of $3,665 for a highway power sweeper for the county engineer's department.

The low bid was submitted by Bill Jaekels of Washington C. H. Other bids were: $3,880 by Ray Storts of Chillicothe; $3,987.80 by the J&H Distributing Co.

A bid of $3,590.35 for a court recording system was submitted by Dictaphone Inc. It was the lone bid submitted for the system and was referred to Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer for approval before commissioners took action.

In other business Monday, the firm of Dummmond-Sifford and Associates was employed to design a waste water treatment plant and sewers for the Perrill Road area in Harrison Twp.

The performance bond of Brookhill Subdivision was released and the roads in the division located just east of Circleville turned over to the Circleville Twp. trustees for maintenance.

Commissioners are to meet Thursday with County Prosecutor Richard Gerhardt to discuss the proposed Ashville annexation. A public hearing was held last Wednesday concerning the annexation.

Junk Car Ignites Inside Garage

The Circleville Fire Department was dispatched to the Lloyd Petty residence at 5:20 p.m. Monday when a junk car in the garage ignited. Lloyd Petty Jr. was using a cutting torch to remove the exhaust system from the car when the inside of the vehicle was set ablaze.

Approximately $25 loss was reported on the vehicle. Firemen worked for 20 minutes dousing the flames which were a threat to the building at 130 N. Pickaway St.

Legion Plans Anniversary Celebration Saturday

Members of the Hall-Adkins Post 134, American Legion, have joined with fellow members across the country in celebrating the Legion's 55th birthday during March it was announced by Post Commander George Brown today.

It was at a meeting of representatives of the various outfits of the American Expeditionary Force of World War I convening at Paris, France, that this organization of war veterans was founded. That was March 15-17, 1919.

Today the Legion is still actively engaged in the pursuit of a goal which could mean its eventual demise. With a membership of 2.7 million men and women, all veterans of wars of the 20th Century, the Legion remains firmly dedicated to principles which could bring about that long sought after era where there would be no more war veterans from which its membership could be drawn.

At age 55 the Legion is calling upon all veterans everywhere to "be counted again". Every veteran at one time or another stepped forward and was counted as a member of the country's military forces. He or she was counted in the pursuit of the nation's purpose to preserve and protect our priceless freedoms and defend the cause of individual dignity.

As Legionnaires, these same war veterans can "be counted again"—counted as members of a patriotic organization that stands for all that is best in American life, an organization dedicated to serving the communities and neighborhoods of America, Brown said.

The American Legion is using the occasion of its 55th Anniversary not to reflect on past achievements but rather to muster increasing strength to meet the responsibilities which will challenge this gigantic fraternity in the years ahead. For the American Legion this 55th anniversary is a time to make sure it will "be counted again" as it strives to meet its responsibilities to the veterans and their families and fulfill its obligation to serve community, state and nation.

Local legion festivities are being planned for Saturday, highlighted by a dinner-dance.

Dr. Michael J. Chakeres, London, past commander of the state of Ohio American Legion will be the guest speaker. Other special guests will include county Americanism test winners, local public officials and Legion dignitaries from all over Ohio.

A Page Of Opinion

Not Too Soon

Solar energy, which to many seems the ideal substitute for fossil fuels, has a tough and probably lengthy road ahead before it makes an appreciable dent in energy supplies. The theory of solar energy is perfect. It utilizes a free and abundantly available source to create as much electricity or motive power as anyone might wish.

But accomplishment is far distant from theory at this point. Although more money than ever is being spent on solar energy research ($32 million by the federal government alone next year), any influence on a significant number of homes may be decades away.

The chairman of the House subcommittee on energy, Rep. Mike McCormack, says: "Solar energy is very much in its infancy. It's extremely optimistic to expect it to contribute 1 per cent of total energy demand in the country in 20 years."

However long it may take, it is not too early to start an all-out and prolonged effort to construct the technical data needed to bring solar energy into reality at a reasonable cost. There are many today who wish the effort had been started 20 years ago.

Good Night Chet And Others

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—You reach an age at which you pick up the newspaper at your door or newsstand, plunge through only the headlines of Watergate, impeachment and what happened to your favorite team and maybe Blondie, and then thumb swiftly to the obituary page. There, as time ticks on, you find yourself more and more among friends.

My brothers and sisters used to laugh when our mother skipped over such breathtaking stories as the signing of the Kellogg-Briand Pact — which, as you remember, forever outlawed war as a means of settling international disputes — and flew like a Capistrano swallow right for the obit page of the old Washington Star.

She would then from time to time whisper, "Oh, my!" with great feeling. Occasionally she would add, "So young!" which meant the late lamented was younger than she.

None of us laughs any more at that treasured memory.

Along with a lot of other people eroding around the news business, I had a saddening triple header the other day: Chet Huntley, Max Kase and Charles Hoerter — formerly, and respectively, of NBC, the N.Y. Journal-American, and the N.Y. Daily News. The week before, it was Bernie Relin, a first-rate public relations man and general all-around benefactor, Ernie Barcella, who worked brilliantly for UPI and General Motors, and, in the recent past, we lost Arthur Daley, of the New York Times, and Jimmy Cannon of King Features, the New York Journal-American and New York Post.

Looking at their tiny, generally fuzzy pictures imbedded in their obits it was a dismal feeling to realize that this would be the last time I'd see images of friends I had known, worked with, laughed with, drank with and admired so much — in glorious technicolor.

It was also depressing to consider what short shrift the obit writers give to one's dead friends. Obit writers, a special breed more intimately related to grave diggers than to living, breathing newsmen, seem to have a rule of never telephoning the right people when researching their stories. They are something like ministers of God pressed into delivering eulogies — on short notice — over departed souls they never knew, never read, never listened to, and don't give a damn about.

Chet Huntley did a lot to give the airy nothingness of television newscasting a local habitation and a name, as Shakespeare more or less said of a poet. His dignity, knowledge, industriousness added to dimensions Ed Murrow had forced upon that medium. Chet had the courage of his sound convictions, even to holding still in the face of a strike he — a union man at heart — didn't believe in. His serious mien was a perfect backdrop for the impish commentaries of his partner, David Brinkley. But he was the rock of that combination, the good sound Gibraltar. Brinkley was the waves.

A lot of TV stars go on to great riches in other fields: streets are named for them in Florida and California. Huntley had a hard time getting permission to build a dirt road into his Montana property after he retired. He was hounded politically, I always thought, when all he wanted was to open glorious lands he knew and loved to urban inmates he had been talking to for years.

Max Kase was an unselfish sports editor, no mean achievement. He gave his guys a break, built up their bylines, provided a soft shoulder of which they could cry when needed. He did more things for worthwhile charities than most million-dollar foundations. Max saved college basketball by exposing the few apple-cheeked crooks who might have rotted the whole barrel. For that he won a Pulitzer citation . . . but never wore it on his arm. His obit forgot to mention that he was a first class, decent, honest, wonderful guy.

Charles Hoerter had a rags to riches life that has just about disappeared from newspaper work. He started on the N.Y. News as a copy boy for the now legendary — and thriving Marshall Hunt of Shitopeke Flats, Olympia, Wash., the first sports editor of the late Captain Patterson's pioneering New York tabloid. For a time in its early years, at the beginning of the 1920s, the Golden Age of Sports as Grantland Rice named it (Westbrook Pegler called it the Era of Wonderful Nonsense), there were just the two of them, General Hunt and Private Hoerter. Charlie went to the top over the years, nurtured the likes of Paul Gallico, Jack Miley, Jimmy Powers and helped develop a lot of latter-day stars such as Dick Young and Gene Ward.

The obit I read on Bernie Relin seemed to stress that his biggest contribution in life was his secret contribution of $3,000 to clean up Central Park after a Barbra Streisand concert. He spent a zillion times that much on the causes of the young, the old, the unemployed; ran corporations employing tens of thousands of people, and was the most congenial touch in town. Two nights before he died, he stopped a noisy meeting of a club he belonged to, The Skeeters, and asked for a moment of prayer for our friend Mack Kriendler.

And so it goes. Ernie Barcella was as good a reporter as I ever met. He made that sometimes difficult jump from spot news to public relations, at the urging of Tony DeLorenzo of G.M., and handled the job with great distinction, honesty, and the priceless trait all of the above shared, a genuine touch of class.

God bless . . .

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Even before ecology became paramount, insurers knew that civilization and nature often mixed poorly, especially when drainage areas were paved for parking and factories were built on flood plains.

When available, flood insurance sold at forbidding prices, and most agents and homeowners and businessmen didn't even consider such protection. Insurers claimed it was a losing matter.

That notion persisted among businessmen and homeowners, even though in recent years a federally subsidized program makes low-cost flood insurance available to communities that take certain precautions against inundation.

And so, when nature and civilization clashed two years ago few homeowners or businessmen had any insurance at all. More than $1.7 billion of damage was done by floods in the East, and only a small fraction was insured.

The destruction in Rapid City, S.D., from another flood provides stark details:

In that Black Hills community about 700 homes, 150 business structures and 500 mobile homes were destroyed.

Hundreds of other homes were damaged.

After the rains ceased it was learned that only 27 homes and 2 businesses had flood insurance. The total loss was about $100 million, but only $166,451 was covered by flood insurance.

It became clear that few people in Rapid City knew that their community was eligible for low cost flood insurance, subsidized by the government and sold through company agents in the same manner as any other insurance.

Since the disasters of two years ago flood insurance has caught on. In November 1970, only 42,900 policies existed, providing $673 million of coverage. As of Jan. 31, 316,000 policies provided $5.5 billion of coverage.

The 1972 floods spurred many flood-prone communities to qualify for the National Flood Insurance Program. From May 31, 1972 to May 31, 1973, the number of qualified communities jumped to 2,275 from 1,201. It now exceeds 3,000.

To become eligible, communities must agree to zoning and land use restrictions — to restrain civilization from encroaching on the water's rights, so to speak. Requirements met, almost any agent can provide the coverage. As a result of legislation signed Dec. 31, 1973, the limits of coverage have been greatly enlarged.

Single-family homes may be insured for up to $35,000, double the earlier limit. Two-family to four-family structures and small businesses may be insured for up to $100,000, compared with $30,000 previously.

The residential policy costs 25 cents for each $100 of insurance, with the minimum premium pegged at $25. For the maximum coverage of $35,000 a homeowner would pay $87.50. The nonresidential rate is 40 cents a $100.

Contents also may be insured, in residential buildings for a maximum of $10,000 at 35 cents for each $100, and is nonresidential structures for up to $100,000 at a 75 cents per $100 rate.

Perhaps most important, the new legislation requires the Department of Housing and Urban Development to identify flood-prone areas by July 1. Previously the initiative was left to the communities, and many didn't exercise it.

Moreover, communities so identified will be required to participate in the flood insurance program and to adopt and enforce adequate flood ordinances.

A tip given by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriffs Bryan Custer and Miller Fissell Wednesday resulted in the apprehension of an escaped convict of the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison and the arrest of three other men on charges of transporting moonshine in Chillicothe.

The history of one-room school buildings in Pickaway County came to its "finis" Thursday evening when the Monroe Twp. board of education in a meeting with D. L. Buchanan, county superintendent of schools, agreed to abolish the Hill School in Monroe Twp. located near the Sarah Kidney home and which for a number of years has housed 30 students, including eight grades.

Circleville High School's contestants in the general scholarship tests given here last Saturday made a notable record. David Lewis Buchanan Jr., W. Mound St., received a score of 362½ out of a possible 400 for first place; Charles Walden Plum of N. Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Someone told me that high blood pressure can be caused by a tumor. No doctor has ever suggested this as a possible cause of my blood pressure. Mr. T.M., N.M.

Dear Mr. M.:

The authoritative "someone" who told you this was indeed privy to information that is true, although exceedingly rare.

The tumor you refer to, pheochromocytoma, is probably responsible for less than one-half of one per cent of all cases of severe high blood pressure. This cause is insignificant in terms of the vast number of cases of hypertension, or high blood pressure, treated by physicians everywhere.

High blood pressure is only one of a group of symptoms associated with this rare type of tumor. Only when these symptoms occur together does the doctor give consideration to its possibility.

I would like my readers to understand that when a physician examines a patient he entertains all the possibilities that might be responsible for a particular group of symptoms. Patients would be done a great injustice if their doctors expressed to them all the possibilities that he was considering during the examination.

Highly anxious patients would be terrified if such a detailed outline of possibilities were presented before the final diagnosis is made.

My ears become blocked, especially after a flight. The same thing happens even when I have a cold.

Can anything be done about it?
Miss D.A., Wisc.

Dear Miss A.:

The eustachian tube is a small opening that leads from the back of the nose to the middle ear.

The free flow of air keeps the eardrum in balance. Normally, this tube is closed, but opens when we swallow or yawn. This process is controlled by two tiny muscles that act as safety valves.

When the tube is obstructed and no air passes through it, a vacuum occurs that is responsible for the blocked sensation you describe.

Allergies, rapid descent in an airplane, masses of adenoid tissue in children, infection of the sinuses, nasal polyps, and acute colds can obstruct the eustachian tube.

Some of these causes can be removed if found to be present.

See Slowdown In Mexican Beef

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today Mexico may diminish in the distant future as a major source of live cattle for U.S. feedlots and boneless beef because of growing demand among Mexican consumers.

But Mexico also is a big buyer of U.S. livestock and related products, including dairy breeding animals and frozen bull semen. Thus, a report by the Foreign Agricultural Service said, the two-way trade is expected to continue brisk for "at least another five years."

"But over the longterm, the outlook is somewhat uncertain as Mexico's population increases and fewer live cattle are available for export," the report said.

It was written by James K. Freckmann, assistant U.S. agricultural attache in Mexico City. He said Mexico is increasing cattle production but that the boost "will about keep pace" with the country's population growth over the next five years.

Mexican feeder cattle have been an important source for many feedlot operators in the southwest, although the imports have fluctuated widely in recent years. Those totaled about 700,000 head in calendar 1973, down from 916,000 in 1972, as the Mexican government held down shipments of both live cattle and beef to help relieve rising meat costs at home.

Sales of U.S. cattle and livestock products have soared, meanwhile, including more than 14,000 dairy breeding cattle worth $7.6 million during the 1972-73 fiscal year ended last June 30. That was up from about 8,000 head sold for $3.7 million the year before.

Freckmann said that in the first four months of the fiscal year that began last July 1 dairy cattle sales to Mexico totaled more than 8,000 head worth $4.5 million, reflecting higher prices per animal.

"Of growing importance have been U.S. exports of frozen bull semen," Freckmann said. "In fiscal 1972, those exports were valued at $65,000, while last year they grew to $270,000 and reached $110,000 during the first four months of fiscal 1974."

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Thai army today honored the U.S. Army Special Forces at an airport ceremony as the last 300 Green Berets left the country.

The ceremony marked the end of 14 years of Special Forces activity in Thailand. Based at Lopburi, 100 miles north of Bangkok, Green Berets trained Thai soldiers in special warfare techniques.

About 35,000 U.S. servicemen are still stationed in Thailand.

Moochers Provoke Her

DEAR ABBY: I play cards with several different groups of women. Everyone who owns a car leaves it home, and I always seem to be the one who has to pick up three or four women and drive them home. With the energy crisis, I feel this is unfair.

How about a comment on transportation moochers?

CONSTANT READER
DEAR CONSTANT: Next time you have all the moochers in your car, try this: "Girls, this is your chauffeur speaking. Because of the energy crisis, we must all take turns driving. We'll start alphabetically. Mrs. Applebaum, you're first!"

DEAR ABBY: It's high time you published something in favor of smoking.

I am a smoker and I enjoy it. Smoking has long been one of life's pleasures, and to deny it is absurd.

In order to survive in the world today, one must learn how to give and take, and for a nonsmoker to make a smoker uncomfortable by depriving him of his smoking pleasure is just as selfish as it is for a smoker to make a nonsmoker uncomfortable by smoking

GM Raises Auto Prices

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors says it will increase retail car and truck prices an average $28 in the next several days.

The giant auto maker cited higher delivery and production costs for the price hike, its third since the 1974 model year began last September.

The GM announcement Sunday came after the federal Cost of Living Council approved a $50-per-car increase for American Motors. The council indicated in its ruling Friday that it would not challenge a Chrysler increase of $28, effective today.

The council also said that a commitment made by three of the makers last December to limit price hikes for 1974-model vehicles did not cover adjustments for destination charges.

General Motors said Sunday that $15 of the new $28 retail increase will go for destination charges.

Ford said recently it has no plans to seek a further price increase on 1974-model cars. The firm increased destination charges $25 per vehicle on March 12.

All four U.S. automakers are expected to raise prices again when 1975 models debut in September.

Tower Backs President's Innocence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, long a supporter of President Nixon, says evidence exists to exonerate the President but, despite pleas by the Republican leadership, Nixon refuses to release it.

"I'm hopeful this material will be released that is exculpatory of the President," the Texas Republican, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said in an interview.

"I'm convinced in my own mind. I can't go much beyond that. A number of us have been urging him to open up," Tower said.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said in January that material he has seen shows John W. Dean III, the former presidential counsel, perjured himself when he testified Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up before March 21, 1973.

Tower predicted Nixon would still be in office by next November's elections. But when asked if this would be best for the Republican party, he replied: "It's a long time away. It depends on the climate at the moment."

He said Nixon is refusing to release the material because of his "jealousy of the institution of the presidency."

But Tower said "the leadership collectively has urged it."

Townships In For Revolution?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio township government, unchanged for 170 years, may be on the verge of revolution.

Urbanized townships which have grown in population but not in power want the same ordinance-making powers of cities to cope with challenges ranging from better police protection to improved water and sewer facilities.

Nearly one-third of Ohioans live in the state's 1,320 townships, and 73 of the townships have populations of 6,000 or more.

The biggest township is Colerain in Hamilton County with 51,000 persons. The population is equal to East Liverpool, Piqua and Van Wert combined.

Chester Hummell, executive director of the Ohio State Association of Township Trustees and Clerks, said, "Townships only have authority given them by the legislature. If boards of trustees have not been granted the power to do something, the only place they can get it is from the legislature."

"That makes the state legislature the municipal council for people living in unincorporated areas."

Hummell and township trustees want the power where the problems are.

He said two bills before the 110th

General Assembly "would give townships the same power that municipalities have. Then people in townships could look for a solution through their local government."

Hummell added, "Cities have been living under the luxury of home rule since 1912. Why should some forms of local government have it and not others?"

Township powers are limited to road service, fire and police service, zoning, some environmental protection and parks and recreation.

They cannot incur a general debt, except in anticipation of voted special assessments for roads or sidewalks and for fire and road equipment. They also have greatly limited taxing authority.

Some townships want the power to establish speed limits and control noise on and off public highways. They also want authority to clean streets, provide water supplies and to engage in redevelopment activities.

"By the time a township gets to the size of a city, it should have the same authority," Hummell said. An incorporated community becomes a city when its population surpasses 5,000.

Hummell does not expect the legislature to give townships more power this year, but he has hopes for the 111th General Assembly, beginning January 1975. "There should be impetus in the 111th," he added.

Flag Law Ruled Void

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday struck down a Massachusetts law forbidding contemptuous treatment of the American flag on grounds that the statute was too vague.

But the court indicated that more specific statutes might be acceptable.

The court ruled 6 to 3 that the Massachusetts law was too vague to warn anyone about the kind of conduct that would be considered criminal and was thus a denial of due process.

The decision did not hinge on concerns for free speech.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., invited legislatures to be more specific in defining the kind of flag behavior they intend to outlaw.

Television Blacklist Charges Levelled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Is there a new kind of blacklist that robs actors of jobs because they aren't familiar enough to the television public?

The Screen Actors Guild thinks that such a situation may exist, and it called a meeting this week with other guilds to discuss means to combat it. At issue is a polling service called TvQ, which lists performers according to their popularity. On a recent listing, Lucille Ball was first with 98 per cent familiarity, Johnny Cash and Bill Cosby tied for second with 96, and Doris Day, Fred MacMurray and Dick Van Dyke had 95.

The Screen Actors Guild has heard reports that performers who place far down the list or not at all have been turned down for roles in TV movies and series pilots.

"The guild frowns on this," said president Dennis Weaver. "Such a system doesn't make sense, and to my way of thinking it's unworkable. Some of the top actors around aren't even on the list; a performer has to be put on it by the clients of TvQ."

Weaver said that guild members believe use of TvQ to be widespread in the industry. The networks deny this. A CBS programming executive said he was scarcely aware of TvQ's existence "and I doubt that it is an element in casting." CBS does not subscribe to TvQ. ABC and NBC do.

Barry Diller, ABC's vice president in charge of prime time television, commented: "I'm amazed at how these things get blown up. To utilize TvQ to cast individual actors on a negative basis would be foolish. We don't do it.

"TvQ does have a positive value. If you see someone in a subsidiary role on a series whose popularity is larger than it normally would be, you might say, 'Let's find something for him next season.' But I don't think anyone rejects an actor because of a rating."

Larry White, vice president of programming for NBC, commented: "TvQ, along with many other sources of information, is very useful in making decisions, but it is not a determining factor. We try to cast by using the best possible actor."

Walkouts By Teachers Continue

By The Associated Press Teachers' strikes affecting more than 11,500 pupils in two Ohio school systems continued into their second day with little progress reported in contract negotiations.

Classrooms remained open in the Louisville district in Stark County and the Mad River Township system near Dayton during the first day of the walkouts Monday, but attendance was low.

Less than 10 per cent of the 4,200 students in the Louisville district showed up and only 2,600 of the 7,400 in the Mad River system reported for classes.

Some 165 teachers struck in Louisville after members of the Louisville Education Association rejected the school board's latest contract offer. The dispute reportedly centered on a cost of living increase demand.

At Mad River, 92 per cent of the district's 387 teachers joined the strike, called two weeks earlier when negotiations broke down. At issue there were wages, fringe benefits and improved grievance procedures.

Negotiations continued in both districts.

The Louisville school board met into the early morning hours with teachers' representatives in an effort to resolve the dispute. At Mad River, negotiators were to resume bargaining at 10 a.m.

Rep. Brown Seeks New Government Look

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, said Monday the best contribution the federal government can make to the nation and its economy is to try "to create some political stability and integrity for itself."

Brown, a member of the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, said the almost "hyper-scrutiny" by Congress, the news media and public of presidential actions has compromised the ability of the executive branch to propose and implement policy decisions.

Metzenbaum Urges Controls On Oil Firms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said Monday that Congress should place more effective controls on the oil companies because of the "detrimental impact" they are having on the nation's economy.

If Congress doesn't act soon, Metzenbaum told newsmen, there could be as much as a 6 per cent decline in the Gross National Product and a 6 per cent rise in unemployment.

Metzenbaum said the oil companies are not gouging the economy intentionally, but "are looking out for their own interests." He said oil firms showed increased profits of $10 billion last year, double those of the previous year.

Metzenbaum said he will propose legislation to restrict the prices American oil companies pay their foreign subsidiaries.

He said he will meet this week with Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., to draft the bill with the cooperation of the Federal Energy Office.

The senator said that even though there are controls on oil companies, prices will continue to soar if payments are not controlled to their affiliates overseas.

Oil companies refuse to cooperate with the government in controlling those prices, he said.

Metzenbaum said he would favor an excess profits tax on the oil companies. He said a credit could be given to firms who put the money into development of refineries and oil exploration.

He said he would not support nationalization of oil companies, but would favor a national oil corporation "to develop oil on federal priorities."

A national oil company could serve as a balance by which Americans could get a clearer idea of what private oil companies are doing, Metzenbaum said.

Prince Charles Romance Reported

LONDON (AP) — British newspapers today renewed their speculation that Prince Charles will marry Lady Jane Wellesley, daughter of the Duke of Wellington, because she accompanied the royal party at the annual Royal Film Performance.

Lady Jane, 22, was the guest of Queen Mother Elizabeth, who headed the party Monday night at the premiere of "The Three Musketeers." The group also included Princess Alexandra, a niece of the queen mother, and her husband, Angus Ogilvy.

Charles, the 25-year-old heir to the British throne, is in the navy aboard the frigate Jupiter, which arrived Monday at Acapulco, Mexico, from San Diego, Calif. The papers have been talking about a romance between the two, despite numerous denials, since they began dating about a year ago.

Nothing New Under The Sun, Antique Auto Collector Finds

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Rotary engines, smog devices, shock-absorbing bumpers.

To some they are ingenious new inventions from Detroit. But to the operators of the world's largest private automobile collection here, they are merely flashes from the past.

"There's nothing new in cars," says Jim Edwards, a spokesman for Harrah's automobile collection. "Nothing's really changed in the last 60 years."

"When the automobile was first coming onto the scene, there were hundreds of auto makers, and many of them had some pretty ingenious ideas."

One of those ideas was the rotary engine which was first introduced by the Adams-Farwell in 1906. In addition, the Adams offered a removable steering wheel and control pedals to convert the car from a two-seat coupe to a single-seat roadster.

And smog? Detroit said it had made great progress in reducing pollution when it put double burners on engine exhaust systems a few years ago.

The double burner returns exhaust to the engine for a second burning, exactly as in the 1906 Compound which also offered power brakes for good measure.

3 Wooster Residents Held For Extortion

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Magistrate John Ergazos Monday bound three Wooster residents over to a federal grand jury on extortion charges. He continued bail at $100,000 each for Larry N. Cooper, 26, Gwendolyn, Y. McCutcheon, 21, and Carol Holmes, 19.

The three are accused of demanding free radio time in exchange for the life of a mysterious hostage March 16. FBI agents arrested the trio at their Wooster apartment, but no hostage was found.

Prince Philip Hurt In Horse Mishap

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip was thrown to the ground when a horse-drawn light wagon he was driving overturned on the grounds of Windsor Castle just west of London.

The 52-year-old prince, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, was kicked Monday by one of the four horses.

"Nothing was broken, but he was very badly shaken and bruised," said a spokesman at Buckingham Palace.

The prince's accident occurred shortly after his daughter, Princess Anne, visited Windsor to brief her parents on the attempt to kidnap her last Tuesday.

Too Many Teachers Hurt Budget

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The Cincinnati Board of Education says inflation and too many teachers have wreaked havoc with its 1974 budget.

The board Monday adopted a $73.5 million budget for 1974—$4 million more than last year's.

Inflation is blamed by the board for the increase.

But the board says inaccurate projections of teacher needs have left the system with 165 teachers more than are needed and has forced the board to drop many of its proposed programs.

Virginia Griffin, chairman of the board's finance committee, said the extra teachers will have to have their contracts terminated at the end of the school year.

She said more than $2.7 million will have been lost by that time due to the extra teachers. She said the board budgeted this year's teacher expenses with a goal of 28 students per teacher.

Mrs. Griffin said students dropping out and moving away brought that ratio to 25 to 1.

Supt. Donald Waldrup has begun a study to determine how the mistake was made.

Increasing Crime Seen In Israel

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Inspector General of the Israeli state police said that crime is increasing in Israel, but not on a per capita basis.

"We've got all the various types of crime," said Inspector General Shaul Rosolio, during a visit here Monday. "Burglary of homes and business, that's the most common crime. We've got murder, too, of course, but they're usually murders of passion. Not the wanton killing, the killing for killing's sake, that you find some other places."

Rosolio is in the U.S. on a 10-day visit.

"Our biggest problem is traffic and the fusing of people converging on Israel from 70 different countries, from the posh areas and from areas where people are cave dwellers," said Rosolio. "To fuse all of these different peoples into a lawabiding citizenry is not easy."

Rosolio said the Arabs create a problem during periods of unrest and demonstrations.

The 49-year-old Inspector General said Israel was a country of 600,000 people in 1948 and now, including all its territories, the population is estimated at 4½ million.

There are no local police in Israel and all jails are federal. Ten per cent of Rosolio's 16,000 member police force are women.

"We think it's a good system," he said. "It's not for everybody, but it works for us."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The record-breaking cold high pressure system which covered Ohio early Monday has now moved off the New England Coast, and southwesterly winds circulating around this high cell have brought relatively warm air north into Ohio.

Compared to a minus three degree reading registered at Toledo at 5 a.m. Monday, Tuesday morning at the same time the mercury at Toledo was 29 above. Nearly all stations in the state are 25 to 30 degrees warmer than 24 hours ago.

This trend to higher temperatures will continue during the day, but a cold front drifting southeastward across the Great Lakes will reverse the trend and bring colder weather as it moves south across Ohio tonight. This Canadian air will not be nearly as severe as the cold air over the weekend.

The extended outlook for Ohio calls for another warming trend beginning Thursday and continuing into the weekend.

Area Women Have Been In News Since Early County Beginning

By SUE BOYER
Herald Staff Writer

Although the equal rights amendment is a major topic in the news today, the women of Circleville and surrounding Pickaway County have been in the news since the early beginnings of the area.

The first child born in Circleville was a girl, Louisa Leiby. The child was born in June of 1811. Her father established the first dry goods store in the newly settled town of Circleville.

The Circleville Home and Hospital was incorporated and established solely by the females of Circleville. It was incorporated April 11, 1894 by five women, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Renick, Mrs. Dorothy R. Turney, Mrs. Sarah A. Heffner, Mrs. Annie S. Sears and Mrs. Rose L. Morris. Mrs. Heffner is given credit for conceiving the idea of the establishment in Circleville.

It combined the features of both a hospital and a home for the aged. The hospital was non-denominational since the women thought no one church nor one man could run such an institution.

After the conception of the idea took form, a group of benevolent Circleville women applied to the board of education for the use of the old colored school on Ohio Street. Since an act of the General Assembly had forbade separate schooling for the colored and the white, the board had no other use for the old building.

The building had been erected in 1871 and was in need of repair. It was also much too small for what Mrs. Heffner had in mind. The building was remodeled throughout and an additional built before the five benefactors opened it for business.

The hospital and home was dedicated May 9, 1895. Some four or five years after its dedication, another addition was built. The cost of both additions and the extensive remodeling exceeded $8,000.

At the time, the hospital department consisted of six private rooms, one six-bed ward, one operating room and a doctor's room. The home could accommodate 15 persons. All those admitted to the home had to be at least 50 years old. The admission fee was graded according to the age of the applicant.

The hospital and home were entirely free of debt by shortly after the turn of the century. It was maintained by fees and donations from the annual Home and Hospital Fair which was held in the commissioners' room in the court house. The fair was considered a grand event of the social year.

The first executive committee, advisory committee and officers were made up entirely of women. The hospital was run and advised by 21 women with Mrs. Heffner holding the position of first president of the institution. Mrs. Sarah A. Faulkerson was the first matron of the hospital.

Oddly enough for the times, all the ladies were referred to by their given names in the early history books. Even though most of them were married, Aaron Van Cleef seldom used their husbands' names in his "History of Pickaway County".

Even the press was in the fair hand of a woman for a time in the nineteenth century. Lillie C. Darst leased the Herald in May 1875 and was editor of the publication until 1883. Miss Darst graduated valedictorian of her class in Circleville city schools in 1865. She was an author, poet and lady of letters and has taken her place among the literary women of Ohio.

During the editorship of Miss Darst, the Herald was Republican.

The ideal set forth by Miss Darst is still an important factor in the county today. Mrs. Esta Tipton owns, publishes and edits the Williamsport News.

Like the spirit of the hospital, it took the "weaker sex" to revive the interest of the library in the county. The first idea of a library was conceived as far back as Feb. 28, 1834, when the Ohio Legislature incorporated the "Circleville Athenaeum". The group's main function was to spread knowledge and learning through reading, discussion and lectures.

The "Athenaeum" was discontinued in 1837 when a notice appeared in the Herald asking those persons having books belonging to the group to return them and those book owners to claim their volumes.

The Lyceum began to meet about the same time the Athenaeum was discontinued. It was followed by similar associations for several years. Meetings and debates of these groups ceased when their meeting place burned in 1851.

For nearly 20 years, the library spirit was dead until several women began a magazine club. They collected several books and had a circulating library among themselves. These books were later donated to the city when a public library was planned.

Several other women in the area spent their efforts to establish a reading room for young men. In 1869, the Young Men's Christian Association was created. In 1871, interested ladies cleared $500 from an entertainment fest to add books to the reading room.

When the YMCA failed, other attempts were made at the library spirit but it wasn't until July 1, 1873 that a library was established in the Odd Fellow's Hall. Miss Ella Barks was elected first librarian. Her first report showed 874 volumes on the shelves and 51 volumes of unbound magazines.

In 1880, the ladies took over the principalship of the High School in Circleville. Between Sept. 1880 and June 1895, five misses occupied the position of principal. Bertha Farr, Emma M. Hall, Vrylena W. Buffum, Mary E. Whipple and Ella C. Drum took turns at the job in those 15 years.

Early women's organizations included the Ladies of the Maccabees, Woman's Relief Corps and Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Indiana Woman Wins Met Pact

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)— Alma Jean Smith, 24, Bloomington, has won a contract with the Met, but don't look for her to be the first woman big league baseball player.

Miss Smith, an Indiana University student, won a year's contract with the Metropolitan Opera of New York City plus a $5,000 cash prize. She surpassed nine other regional finalists in the 21st annual National Auditions sponsored by the Met's National Council.

Miss Smith, whose award-winning presentation included two arias by Puccini and Mozart, has studied voice at Oberlin College in Ohio and sung operatic roles with the Oberlin Music Theater, the Indiana University Opera Theater and the Kentucky Opera Association.

The Department of State was presented several years ago with a six-foot clock made in 1776 at Norwich, Conn., that chimes six different tunes. The tunes, in vogue at the time of the American Revolution, range from such titles as "Shady Bowers" and "Lass of Patty's Mill" to a minuet by Handel.

The Circleville Hive of the Ladies of the Maccabees was organized July 6, 1897 by Rhoda P. Wright. The ladies originally met on the first and third Thursdays of each month at the homes of Ellen V. Nightingale and Mrs. O. H. Dunton.

The charter for the WRC was received Feb. 28, 1888 with 16 charter members. Ella Bowling was the first president.

Organized in Pickaway County in 1890, the WCTU had by 1906 a membership in the county of over 200 in ten active unions. The first union was organized in South Bloomfield by the state organizer. The second organized union was located in Ashville.

With the motto "For God and Home and Every Land", the WCTU stood for the overthrow of liquor traffic, the cause of 9-10 of the world's evil.

Last but not least on the list of early county women is the name of Dr. Esther A. Van Riper. Dr. Van Riper was a Michigan native and a graduate of the Druidic University of America at Buffalo, N. Y. She held several other diplomas including one from the Jacksonian Optical College, Jackson, Mich. She came to this area shortly after the turn of the century.

ARTICLE II

Section 20. The General Assembly, in cases not provided for in this constitution, shall fix by law the term of office and the compensation of all public officers; but no change therein shall affect the compensation of any officer during his existing term, unless the office be abolished; provided, however, that if an officer elected to the same office from the same district, or the same office receives a greater compensation, such rate of compensation shall thereupon be payable to each of the other officers holding the same office in that district.

An officer who is appointed to fill a vacancy in an elective office shall not be entitled to receive more compensation than any elected officer holding the same office in the same district is receiving at the time such appointed officer takes office.

Section 31. The members and officers of the General Assembly shall receive a fixed compensation, to be prescribed by law, and no other allowance or perquisites, either in the payment of postage or otherwise; and no change in their compensation shall take effect during the legislative biennium within which it was made.

Section 20a. Notwithstanding Section 20 of Article II of the Constitution of Ohio, any increase in compensation fixed by the General Assembly for any public officer, which, because of its being made during his term of office, does not become payable to such officer until after two years from the date of its enactment, shall nevertheless become effective and payable on the effective date of the enactment of such increase in compensation.

SCHEDULE

The secretary of state shall place upon the ballot as separate issues the proposal to amend sections 20 and 31 of Article II, and the proposal to enact sections 20a of Article II, of the Constitution of Ohio, so as to permit the electorate to vote separately on each such proposal.

If a majority of the electors voting on the foregoing proposed amendments, at the primary election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, 1974, adopt the same, they shall become part of the Constitution of the State of Ohio and existing sections 20 and 31 of Article II of the Constitution of the State of Ohio shall be repealed.

(Amended House Joint Resolution No. 61)

JOINT RESOLUTION

To amend Section 1 of Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Ohio to provide for preparation of the language which appears on the ballot when the General Assembly proposes a constitutional amendment so that it will properly identify the substance of the proposal, to provide procedures for timely challenges to the adoption and submission of such amendments, and to assure information to the voters about such amendments.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, three-fifths of the members elected to each house concurring therein, that there shall be submitted to the electors of the state in the manner prescribed by law at a special election to be held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, 1974, a proposal to amend Section 1 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Ohio to read as follows:

ARTICLE XVI

Section 1. Either branch of the general assembly may propose amendments to this constitution; and, if the same shall be agreed to by three-fifths of the members elected to each house, such proposed amendments shall be entered on the journals, with the yeas and nays, and be filed with the secretary of state at least ninety days before the date of the election at which they are to be submitted to the electors, for their approval or rejection. They shall be submitted on a separate ballot without party designation of any kind, and either a special or a general election as the general assembly may prescribe.

The ballot language for such proposed amendments shall be prescribed by a majority of the Ohio ballot board consisting of the secretary of state and four other members, who shall be designated in a manner prescribed by law and not more than two of whom shall be members of the same political party. The ballot language shall properly identify the substance of the proposal to be voted upon. The ballot need not contain the full text nor a condensed text of the proposal. The board shall also prepare an explanation of the proposal, which may include its purpose and effects, and shall certify the ballot language and the explanation to the secretary of state not later than seventy-five days before the election. The ballot language and the explanation shall be available for public inspection in the office of the secretary of state.

The supreme court shall have exclusive, original jurisdiction in all cases challenging the adoption or submission of a proposed constitutional amendment to the electors. No such case challenging the ballot language, the explanation, or the actions or procedures of the general assembly in adopting and submitting a constitutional amendment shall be filed later than sixty-four days before the election. The ballot language shall not be held invalid unless it is such as to mislead, deceive, or defraud the voters.

Unless the general assembly otherwise provides by law for the preparation of arguments for and, if any, against a proposed amendment, the board may prepare such arguments. Such proposed amendments, the ballot language, the explanations, and the arguments, if any, shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks preceding each election, in at least one newspaper of general circulation in each county of the state, where a newspaper is published. The general assembly shall provide by law for other dissemination of information in order to inform the electors concerning proposed amendments. An election on a proposed constitutional amendment submitted by the general assembly shall not be enjoined nor invalidated because the explanation, arguments, or other information is faulty in any way. If the majority of the electors voting on the same shall adopt such amendments the same shall become a part of the constitution. When more than one amendment shall be submitted at the same time, they shall be so submitted as to enable the electors to vote on each amendment, separately.

EFFECTIVE DATE AND REPEAL

If adopted by a majority of the electors voting on this amendment, the amendment shall take immediate effect and existing Section 1 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Ohio shall be repealed.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

Congress has officially designated March 29th as Vietnam Veterans Day to give these young men and women the full honor due them for their service and dedication to our country. These brave Americans must not be overlooked or slighted, for they, above all others, stood by our country while the chips were down and fought in a most unpopular and controversial war.

Yet, for these six million returning veterans, readjustment has not been easy. Returning to their jobs or finding new ones has posed a serious problem for many because of inflation and unemployment. Continuing their education or beginning career studies and training has also been difficult because of the growing cost of higher education. Even with the assistance provided under the highly successful GI education bill, it has become apparent that changes must be made to give more consideration to the special needs of the new era of veterans from Vietnam.

Consequently, the House recently passed with my support amendments to the GI bill to counteract this problem. First, it would grant a much needed 13.6 per cent increase in the monthly allowances of existing law. This means the single veterans enrolled in a full-time program of education would receive $250 per month instead of $220. Veterans with one dependent would receive $297 instead of $261 and those with two dependents who now receive $298 would get $339. For each dependent in excess of two, an additional $20 would be allowed.

By May 1, the cost of living will have jumped by almost the same percentage as those proposed increases, and it is quite clear the current allowances are highly inadequate. Sixty-eight per cent of the veterans now in school, for example, find they must work to make ends meet. Forty per cent must work more than 20 hours a week. Compounding these statistics with those of the American Council on Education showing the Vietnam veteran's family is of a lower income level than the nonvet and about three-fourths of the vets in school now depend on their monthly VA check to pay their bills indicates just how insufficient these benefits are. I am glad, therefore, to see that the House has voted to ease the burden of veterans seeking and needing higher education assistance.

A second provision of the bill would extend from eight to 10 years the time during which a veteran must use his education benefits. Existing law allows eight years, either from the effective date of the act in June 1966, or from discharge — whichever is later. Come May 31st of this year, a substantial number of veterans separated between 1955 and 1966 would find their educational benefits terminated unless the law is changed. Considering the fact that many veterans may have had to delay their educational pursuits for a variety of reasons (but I suspect primarily because they had to work first to help cover the higher costs of schooling), this proposed extension is only fair.

The House-passed veterans education bill would also reduce the disability requirement for eligibility to receive vocational rehabilitation training from 30 per cent to 10 per cent and would make farm cooperative training available for the first time to those dependents and survivors entitled to war orphans and widows educational assistance. In addition, reservists could count periods of active duty for training in computing their educational entitlement, provided there is subsequent active duty of one year or more.

The education bill has been sent to the Senate and the Veterans Committee will begin hearings on these matters shortly. I am hopeful the legislative process can be completed swiftly on these proposals. They are but a small, yet significant, means of showing our gratitude to these dedicated Americans who have invested so much of themselves in the defense of all Americans and the protection of our great democracy.

Find Cities Improving Education

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Families who moved from the cities to the suburbs in the 1960s hoping to find better funded education for their children might consider moving back, says a team of Wright State University researchers.

John Treacy, associate professor of economics, and Russell Harris, have released findings showing school districts within Ohio cities outspent their suburban counterparts by about 15 per cent during the school year 1970-71.

Since the education boom of the 1960s, said the researchers, educators have assumed that money spent per pupil was higher in the suburban schools than in city schools.

While that may have been true then, it is not true in the 1970s, they said. They blamed a steady increase in the number of school age children in the suburbs, coupled with relatively fixed tax bases, as a big part of the cause.

During the school year, city school districts averaged expenditures of $819 per pupil, compared with $711 per pupil in suburban districts, the report said.

Furthermore, it said, rural school districts trailed both city and suburban areas, falling behind suburban expenditures by an average of $84.

NOTICE OF ELECTION ON ISSUE OF BONDS

NOTICE is hereby given that in pursuance of a Resolution of the Board of Education of the Westfall Local School District, Ohio, passed on the 19th day of November, 1973, there will be submitted to a vote of the people of said Westfall Local School District at a Special Election to be held in the District of Logan Elm Local School at the regular places of voting therein, on Tuesday, the 7th day of May, 1974, the question of issuing bonds of said Westfall Local School District the amount of One Million Six Hundred Seventy Thousand Dollars ($1,670,000) for the purpose of to provide for constructing and equipping a new middle school building and improving the site thereof; as provided by law.

The maximum number of years during which such bonds are to run is 22 years. The estimated average additional tax rate amounts to Forty Cents for each one hundred dollars of valuation, which is 4 mills for each one dollar of valuation, outside of the limitation imposed by Article XII, Section 2 of the Constitution, as certified by the County Auditor.

The Polls for said Election will open at 6:30 o'clock A.M. and remain open until 6:30 o'clock P.M. Daylight Saving Time of said day.

By order of the Board of Elections, of Pickaway County, Ohio.

Distaff Kingmaker Busy Again

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Shirley Fletcher began her career as a political campaign manager in the 1968 presidential race.

This year the 38-year-old Mt. Vernon mother of four, wife of the Knox County dog warden, is concentrating on a congressional campaign not even in her district.

"You might say I started at the top and worked myself down," she chuckled.

In 1968 she was chief recruiter and organizer of a movement to make former Gen. Curtis LeMay president of the United States.

In 1974 she is political advisor for Don Gingrich of Franklin, an Independent candidate in the 8th district in southwestern Ohio.

But, one thing the jobs have in common. Mrs. Fletcher is campaigning for a conservative.

Gingrich, like LeMay, is a conservative Republican. He formerly managed the campaigns of state Sen. Donald "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Mid-former two-term congressman and former president of the National Young Republicans Club.

LeMay ended up as vice presidential running mate of Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

"I voted for Wallace in 1968 and I would again if he runs," said Mrs. Fletcher. "I won't say we won't have LeMay back again, but I'm waiting to see what Wallace does."

Mrs. Fletcher, who is doing little active campaigning in the eighth district, still retains the enthusiasm that had her pioneering in the attempt to put LeMay in the White House. She proudly points out Gingrich is author of a book, "No Prize for Second Place."

"I like him and I like his ideas," she said. "He's got basically the same philosophy that I have. I'm not doing much in the campaign but giving advice."

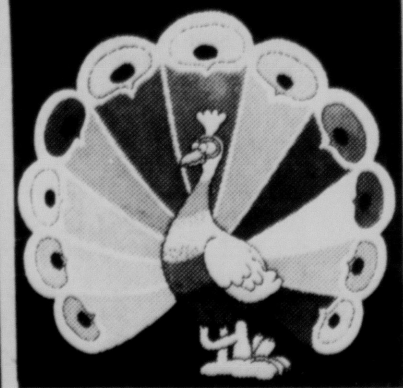

Mrs. Fletcher pictures herself as "a moderate conservative, mostly middle of the road, leaning a little to the right."

Among her many activities is painting, a talent that originally involved her with the LeMay family. She did a painting of the general's father, Irving, a one-time steeplejack.

"His wife didn't like it and said she didn't want it in the house," Mrs. Fletcher recalled. "She said it was a perfect likeness and having one in the house was bad enough."

Being a mother of four hasn't hampered Mrs. Fletcher, even in the LeMay effort.

"I recruited the kids that were old enough for the campaign and then I let LeMay's mother hold the one that was only seven months old at the time," she said.

Kris Kline, Joe Smith Gain MVP Honors

MOST VALUABLE—Kris Kline (left) and Joe Smith (right) were named most valuable players at the Circleville Winter Sports Banquet. Kris was honored for his performance on the hardwood and Joe for his fine work on the wrestling team.

Kris Kline and Joe Smith were named most valuable players in their respective sport at the Tiger Winter Sports Banquet sponsored by the Circleville Athletic Booster Club at the high school Monday night.

The affair honored the varsity and reserve basketball teams, wrestling team, girl's basketball team and cheerleaders.

Kline picked up the MVP for his fine effort and performance on the basketball squad. The blond workhorse not only led his team in scoring and rebounding but continually turned in a great defensive game.

His work gained him a first place berth on the All-South Central Ohio League team, a second team spot on the Central District team and honorable mention on the All-Ohio squad. Chris was always the type performer who "played both ends of the court."

Smith's MVP recognition came from his top performances and leadership as the 119-pound grappler for the Tigers. Joe compiled a 14-5-3 record on the season. He was an All-SCOL performer for the Tigers, placed third in the Circleville Tournament and gained a fourth place spot in the tough Licking Heights tournament.

Both young men were selected for MVP honors by a vote of their teammates.

Coach John Lawhorn introduced the varsity basketball squad and made the presentations to the members. He also announced that Harold Reed and Perry Hoskins had been selected as co-captains of the 1974-75 squad.

Individual varsity cage awards went to: Robin Martin, most assists; Brad Spangler, most improved player; Kris

Jim Arledge Training 17 At Fairgrounds

BUSY TRAINER—Jim Arledge of Circleville is one of the busiest trainers at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds harness track this spring. There are 17 horses in the Arledge stable.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles about horsemen training at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds harness track.

Jim Arledge has the biggest stables at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds track this year. The veteran Circleville horseman is training 17 head for himself and other central Ohio owners.

The season for Arledge started last week with the opening of Lebanon. He will campaign there, at Northfield, Scioto Downs and on the county fair circuit this summer.

One of the best performers in his stable is Linworth Time, an 8-year-old pacer that took a mark of 2:04.2 at Scioto Downs. It is owned by Arledge.

For Frank Rhoads of Circleville Arledge is training Ready Pick, a 5-year-old pacer that has gone the mile in 2:07.1, also at Scioto Downs.

Sweet and Lively, a 3-year-old pacer sired by Frosty Time and owned by Lloyd Davis of Circleville is also in the stable.

The Woodstock Study Narm of Monticello, N.Y. has a pair of Race Time colts at the Pickaway oval under Arledge's care. They are Racing Scot, a 3-year-old and Sail To Glory, a 2-year-old.

Hoosier Buckeye, owned by Dr. Jerry Maloon of Columbus, is an outstanding 2-year-old pacing prospect in the Arledge stable.

Emily's Party, a 3-year-old pacer by Reporter, is owned jointly by Mrs. Robert Lunsford, West Alexandria; Irene Myers, South Charleston and Arledge.

Tye and James R. Davis own Butler's Dream, a 4-year-old. Tye, of Williamsport, also owns Little Stone, a 2-year-old trotting prospect while James, Route 1, Chillicothe, owns Sweet Berry.

Bill Long of Black Ford owns Our Baby, a 2-year-old and Dorothy Wenner of Bucyrus owns Bingo Pot, a 3-year-old. Rounding out the stable are four pacers owned by Arledge.

They are Shadydale Neat, a 2-year-old pacer sired by American Adios, Sandy Berry, a 3-year-old pacer sired by Great Berry, and two sons of Hideaway Pat, Pat's Generation and Pat's Gold. Many local harness fans will remember Hideaway Pat, the outstanding pacing stallion owned by Harlow Arledge and raced successfully at Northfield Park, Cleveland, and at Scioto Downs.

Roger Nelson Can't Crack Rotation

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Roger Nelson says he has no gripes about not being able to crack the rotation of the Cincinnati Reds.

"I can't get in the rotation, no way," the right-hander said Monday after Cincinnati lost to Houston 2-1 in exhibition baseball here.

"They did the same thing with me in Kansas City," he said. "I started in the bullpen and wound up having a good year."

Nelson was the losing pitcher in Monday's game, but had nothing to be ashamed about. He pitched seven innings, gave up three hits and walked one.

Nelson was out most of last season with a sore right elbow. Monday was the longest stretch he's pitched.

"I can't be upset. I mean I don't know if I would be able to throw the ball at all when I came to spring training," he added.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Good Mars influences stimulate your ingenuity and unusual ideas. Present the latter at strategic moments: They should be accepted with enthusiasm now.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Those of you who have unusual creative hobbies should now consider the possibility of turning them into paying professions. Consult experts.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Mercury beneficent. Under such fine influences, you should be alert, eager, and enthusiastic. Especially favored: writings and all forms of communication.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You may have a tendency toward discontent, irritability with slow-moving projects. Recognize the possibility and determine to control such feelings.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You may have a complex program. Tackle it with unobtrusive but solid determination, however. Back what you should stoutly, but avoid being sharp with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Your planets now stimulate initiative, creativity; also help you to handle tedious tasks in a brighter spirit. Use your talents astutely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Wait for the proper signal before engaging in new activities. And, where more research is needed, get busy on it. Be self-reliant, persevering.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): It may occur to you to try to imitate another to get results. But think first. Your own methods could prove more advantageous in the long run.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't underrate your creative ideas. Take advantage of promising aspects to perform in a stimulating manner, befitting your innate talents. Avoid discord.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You should enjoy a lovely feeling of worth and forward propulsion now. Keep eyes on target and don't be sidetracked to your disadvantage.

Two Resignations Accepted; One Employed By Teays Valley Board

The Teays Valley Board of Education approved two resignations of teachers effective at the close of the current school year. The board also approved one medical leave of absence and employed a replacement for the balance of the school term.

Resignations were accepted from Sandra Carns, second grade teacher at Ashville Elementary and Maisie Griner, sixth grade teacher at Walnut Elementary.

Mrs. Angie Rinehart was placed on medical leave of absence for the balance of the 1973-74 school year. Her resignation of a supplemental contract to coach girls' track was also accepted by the board. Miss Cynthia Fulton was employed for the balance of the term to teach girls' physical education and health. Miss Fulton was also employed to coach the girls' track team. Her employment was effective as of March 18.

Supplemental substitute teacher lists 13 and 14 as submitted by the county office were approved.

Requests for professional workshops were approved by the board as follows: Ray Noecker, tractor trouble shooting contest, Springfield, March 15; Orland Cooper or Robert Jenkins, Right To Read Conference, Columbus, April 25 and 26; Orland Cooper, Title I Conference, Columbus, May 7-9.

Approval was granted for payment to David Barnett and Noah Paxton for supervision of the extracurricular use of the Walnut School gymnasium.

The board approved the transfer of $1,000 from the contingency fund to the D-7 fund. The transfer to the D-7, other equipment, fund will cover the cost of a new key meter control gas pump.

Approval was granted to the Scioto Men's Club for use of the Scioto School grounds for a consignment sale in early April.

Action was taken on a personal leave request and a resolution endorsed for a tentative trip by a group of high school students to Washington D. C. under the supervision of the American History teachers. The students will tour the national capital, Gettysburg and several other places of historical interest during the Easter vacation. The parents of the students will be responsible for the financing of the trip and three other adults will chaperone the students.

Bids were considered for the language laboratory transistor portable two-way communication. The bid was awarded to the Electro Systems, Inc., Columbus. Bid considerations were made on window replacement at each of the three elementary buildings and awarded to the Nuvue Company, Cincinnati. The company has a representative in this area.

Mrs. Marilyn Pettibone was placed on the salary schedule as a regular employee for the balance of the current school year. Mrs. Pettibone has been working as a substitute custodian for a part-time employee who had resigned and the board agreed to employ her in this position.

Local superintendent Benis Lutz brought the board up to date on the land adjacent to the Lockbourne Air Force Base. The board had applied for the land for educational purposes and the federal government can assign it to the district. No official word has been received yet on the application. Lutz also informed the board that no final approval has not been granted on the application for an additional unit of vocational agriculture.

The board and superintendent reviewed the document governing professional negotiations as was established last year and made minor revisions in the procedure. The first list of items for discussion have been received from the teachers' association. Meetings between the board and the negotiation committee will begin in the near future.

Several items were discussed by the board and the principals from each of the schools in the district were present to report on matters of significance at their respective buildings. The board approved the course of study election as proposed by the principals and guidance counselors.

Approval was also granted to the primary, intermediate and junior high EMR classes and the primary learning disabilities classes to attend the Shrine circus under the sponsorship of the Jaycees.

Approval was granted to the career education class sponsored by Ohio University to use the high school building in April. The class involves teachers from all over the county who attended a workshop last summer and are required to meet once a month as a continuation of the workshop credit.

The bond issue and materials were briefly discussed. The board will adopt a resolution of necessity in the near future.

In final action, the board passed a resolution to send letters of commendation to the following persons: Robert Hoover for having been named coach of the year and for his overall display of leadership and sportsmanship; the basketball team and to those boys named to all-league positions; Craig Pontious for being named to the all-district and the Bob Bowsher award; Fred Brobst and Drexel Poling and the band members for the superior rating at the district contest and their eligibility for the state contest in early May; Miss Darlene Freeman, choral director, for receiving a two rating; Charles Kerns and the Drama Club for their fine production of "Dracula"; Sandy Beach for winning the county spelling contest.

Lawson's Store on the Lancaster Pike became a drive in when a car failed to stop and went through the glass doors 8:56 p.m. Monday.

According to the police report, Keith R. James, 16, Route 5, was pulling into the parking lot when the brakes failed on his car.

The auto crashed through the glass doors and also shattered the glass windows in the front of the store.

No one was injured in the mishap, but a considerable amount of damage was done to the store front.

Victim's Bicycle Recovered

The bicycle of 15-year-old David Wayne Duffey, Kingston, who was killed in a hit-skip accident Saturday, was turned into the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department Monday.

A passing motorist called Sheriff Radcliff stating he found the bike lying in the road Saturday night. The motorist's reaction was that the bike might have fallen from a vehicle, so he picked it up to avoid a possible accident.

The Bureau of Criminal Investigation, London, is processing and examining the bicycle.

Sheriff Dwight Radcliff is still investigating the incident.

Board Views Design Of New School

An artist's conception of the design for the proposed middle school was presented by architects Kellam and Foley at the Westfall Board meeting Monday. The board met in an extension session of the regular monthly meeting.

The principals from the various schools in the district were present at the meeting with evaluations of their staff members.

Approval was granted for 4-H clubs to use the Jackson building for meetings. The Jackson grounds were also approved for use by the youth baseball league.

Mrs. Norma Feldman was granted half day personal leave.

The board held a discussion on the proposed bond issue for the middle school. The levy would call for $1.67 million or an average of four mills over a 22 year period. The middle school is to be built at the site of the high school.

Brochures will be made available for interested persons and several letters mailed explaining the need for the new school. Door to door campaigning will also be conducted.

Shaul To Testify In LaFatch Trial

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Commerce Department Director Dennis Shaul was expected to be an early witness in the extortion trial of Akron businessman Anthony P. LaFatch.

The trial began Monday after U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary denied a motion to move the trial to Cleveland and ordered participants to refrain from speaking to news reporters.

LaFatch has pleaded innocent to six counts of extortion. He was charged in the alleged solicitation of a $50,000 bribe from the Realty National Corp. of Columbus in exchange for influence he claimed to have in an Ohio Department of Commerce decision. Shaul, formerly of Akron, has admitted he told LaFatch about department action on a Realty National stock issue. But, Shaul said he was unaware of LaFatch's motives and would have given the same information to any businessman.

LaFatch was indicted by a federal grand jury in November after a five-month probe by the U.S. Justice Department. He was arrested about a year ago after FBI agents confiscated $50,000 in marked bills from his Florida home.

Before denying the defense motion to change the location of the trial to Cleveland because of pretrial news publicity, Kinneary questioned 40 prospective jurors about their reading habits.

Chicken Deaths Cost Producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says Mississippi poultrymen will have to pay the costs of destroying millions of chickens tainted by excess traces of a farm pesticide.

Government officials and the poultrymen agreed Monday to kill and bury the birds, found to be contaminated with the chemical dieldrin. Representatives of the broiler chicken industry were told there currently is no way for the federal government to compensate producers for losses incurred in destroying the affected birds.

He quizzed eight jurors privately in his chambers who claimed to have read or heard news reports related to the case. Later, he dismissed five of the jurors.

After six men and six women were sworn as jurors, the judge called attorneys for both sides to his bench, and in a hushed conversation, denied the motion to move the trial. His decision was not announced publicly at the time.

Think Peach, Plum Crops Wiped Out

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Below freezing weekend temperatures apparently destroyed peach and plum crops in central and southern Ohio, Ohio Agriculture Director Gene Abercrombie said Monday.

He estimated the loss of the fruit for the season would run as high as $400,000.

"Part of the fruit crop may be all right in the northern part of the state," Abercrombie said. The north did not experience the warm weather that other sections of the state felt earlier this month. That weather started trees blooming earlier in the south.

"I would say that probably from central Ohio south, the peach and plum crop is probably gone. Both of these are early bloomers, and with the unseasonably warm weather about two weeks ago, the buds were open," he said.

Abercrombie said this was the fifth consecutive year of partial or complete loss of the crop.

The snow before the cold was good fortune for wheat and oats, Abercrombie said.

"We are fortunate that we had this snow. Any oats and legumes had the benefit of the snow cover. It's like putting an extra blanket on your bed," he said.

Mideast Likely To Be Topic Of Kremlin Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev met again today in the Kremlin for their second day of talks.

In addition to Kissinger's advisers on nuclear weapons and European problems, the American delegation included Alfred Atherton, the assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs. This indicated that Kissinger was urging Brezhnev to influence the Syrian government to accept a disengagement agreement with Israel.

The Soviet government announced today that President Hafez Assad of Syria would visit Moscow early next month. Western diplomats said he probably wants to consult with Brezhnev before the start of the disengagement negotiations in Washington.

Stung by Kissinger's success in arranging the Israeli withdrawal from the Suez Canal, the Russians have begun to claim a cardinal role in Middle East peacemaking. The Soviet press is declaring that no permanent settlement can be negotiated without Soviet participation.

This is coupled with press warnings of the dangers of a new war on the Golan Heights if an Israeli withdrawal is not achieved quickly. The newspaper Trud said today that "world public opinion" is "seriously concerned" about the recent intense artillery duels between the Israeli and Syrian forces. It said the Israelis "are playing with fire."

Soviet disenchantment with the new entente between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and the United States was evidenced in a short Tass dispatch from Beirut published by Pravda, the Communist party newspaper.

It said the Lebanese press had published an appeal by a group of prominent Lebanese officials to Sadat calling on him to put an end to attacks on his predecessor, the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

"This appeal was published in connection with the appearance recently of a number of articles aimed at Nasser and the policies he carried out," Tass said.

It was Nasser who aligned Egypt with the Soviet Union and opened the Middle East to Soviet influence in exchange for Soviet arms and Soviet aid in building the Aswan High Dam.

Meanwhile, a Soviet spokesman voiced the possibility that Kissinger during his current visit might be unable to lay the groundwork for another arms limitation agreement for President Nixon to sign when he visits Moscow next summer.

about Section Four," a controversial provision killed by the House that would—among other things—help to get Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, out of a serious political predicament.

In the House State Government Committee, an amendment was approved that would cut from five years to one year the penalty applied to political candidates who fail to file their personal campaign expense statements on time. The amendment was stricken, however, when the bill reached the House floor, by a vote of 64-29.

Lukens failed, it was charged, to get his statement into the Butler County board of Elections within 45 days after his election to a four-year Senate term in November 1972. He said it was mailed, and apparently did not reach the board in time.

Van Meter denied that the Senate, in seeking to restore the lesser penalty to the bill, is trying to take care of one of its own colleagues. "It doesn't just apply to Lukens, there are about 600 of them (people under the same penalty)," the Ashland lawmaker said.

Under the proposal Van Meter said will be made, the penalty would be one year from the effective date of the bill, rather than a year from the date on which the expense statement was due. The House committee chose the latter course and set off arguments about retroactive laws being unconstitutional. "They got hung up in that language," Van Meter said.

The financing bill is one of the priorities leaders have set on legislation they want through before the lawmakers recess for a month April 4 to hit their own campaign trails.

Nelson originally agreed to pay $73,500 per year to lease a smaller, less expensive aircraft from the Texas Broadcasting Co., President Johnson's family corporation. That agreement was signed July 1, 1970, a year and a half after Johnson left office.

Details of the transactions between the milk producers and the Johnson interests are revealed in a report obtained from court records and confirmed independently by The Associated Press.

FTC Land Sales Accord Could Return Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today announced a landmark agreement which could reimburse land buyers for more than $17 million the commission estimates was the product of deceptive advertising.

The agreement was negotiated with GAC Corp. and two subsidiaries with one land development project in Arizona and nine in Florida.

The negotiated agreement between the FTC and the Miami-based company requires GAC to provide prominent warning statements in all future sales contracts and to offer refunds to eligible purchasers who default on payments in the Golden Gate Estates, River Ranch Acres and Remuda Ranch Grants subdivisions in Florida.

J. Thomas Rosch, head of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, estimated the refunds could cost GAC more than $17 million.

Future sales contracts used by GAC

would contain the statement: "The future value of this land, like all undeveloped real estate, is uncertain." The contract would also grant purchasers the unconditional right to cancel with no penalty within 10 days.

The order would also provide various measures to allow buyers since certain dates to swap useless land they might be holding for more valuable lots.

The government sources said that the commission has probed other large land development companies and plans to crack down on several more firms.

"The shock wave that will go through the industry is going to be enormous," the source said.

Although GAC did not admit to violations of the law under the agreement, it has agreed to make restitution in the form of credits of other property to land buyers who can prove they have been wronged, the sources said.

In addition, the firm has agreed not to use the word "investment" in its future advertisements on land and has agreed to permit prospective land buyers a 10-day period in which they can call off the sales contract even after signing it.

Under current government regulations administered by the Housing and Urban Development Department, there is a 48-hour cooling-off period in which land buyers can back out of a sales contract, although this waiting period can be waived in certain circumstances.

The commission has been investigating deceptive advertising techniques in the interstate land sales business. According to sources, the commission usually goes after the biggest target in an industry to obtain a tough order, hoping to make it apply industry wide.

FTC spokesmen would not comment on the case for the record, but a source said the amount of restitution would run into the millions of dollars. He would give no precise total.

HUD's Office of Interstate Land Sales also declined comment on the case, with a spokesman saying the agency was sworn to secrecy.

The Securities and Exchange Commission also was pondering action, it was learned. The company is publicly owned.

The land sales office has tried to crack down on the multibillion dollar industry, where many land plots are bought sight unseen by purchasers under high-pressure sales pitches.

Federal rules call for land developers to deliver on any promised developments in an area and to let potential buyers know the exact nature of the property they are purchasing.

Panel Gets Secret Jury Report

WASHINGTON (AP) U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today turned over to lawyers from the House Judiciary Committee a satchel filled with grand jury evidence on President Nixon's alleged role in Watergate.

Sirica met with John Doar, chief counsel for the impeachment inquiry; Albert Jenner, minority counsel; and Peter Kreindler of the special prosecutor's office and went over the material in the dark brown satchel.

Doar, Jenner and Kreindler arrived at the judge's office minutes after the time he said he would deliver the material.

Sirica has described the material as focusing on the President and "bearing on matters within the primary jurisdiction of the committee in its current inquiry."

lawyers for two defendants in the Watergate cover-up case gave up their attempts to block transmission of the report to the House after the U.S. Court of Appeals turned them down last Thursday.

The grand jury gave Sirica a sealed envelope and the satchel March 1, the same day it indicted seven former administration or campaign aides for allegedly trying to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Bloodmobile Visit Set Friday

On Friday, the Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Pickaway County for the second time in 1974.

Blood Program officials stressed the importance of attaining the goal of at least 150 pints at this visit.

Open-heart surgeries are now being performed at four Columbus hospitals. Children's, Mt. Carmel, Riverside and University. Six are scheduled for this week, requiring at least 78 additional pints of blood.

Pickaway County has been requested to recruit five A negative, five B positive and 10 O positive donors for these surgeries. These patients are from the entire Central Ohio region and require co-operation of all chapters to provide the blood they need.

Hours for the Friday visit are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Community United Methodist Church. It is important to call the Red Cross, 474-5736 to make an appointment.

Donald S. Thomas, lawyer for the Johnson corporations, said in a telephone interview that he had negotiated both the original agreement and the present one with Nelson.

Thomas said the present agreement calls for one of the Johnson family corporations, Western Wildflower Corp., to pay for a pilot and hangar space for the $765,000 Beechcraft King Air model 100, a 13-passenger turboprop aircraft.

He said two other Johnson corporations, Karnack Corp. and LBJ Co., also purchase flight time. But he said the milk producers' co-op has first call

Lawyers for two of the defendants, H. R. Haldeman and Gordon C. Strachan, tried to have Sirica's order reversed on the grounds that once given to a congressional committee, the contents of the report would leak out and possibly prejudice the cover-up trial.

The appeals court said such contentions were "premature at the least." The court said such claims should be based on what has actually happened rather than on what might occur.

During arguments before the appeals court, Philip A. Lacovara, counsel for the special prosecutor's office, said the sealed material included a letter of transmittal, a report that listed the items of evidence, and the evidence itself.

Sirica said the report "draws no accusatory conclusions ... It renders no moral or social judgments. The report is a simple and straight forward compilation of information gathered by the grand jury, and no more."

In addition to Haldeman and Strachan, the grand jury indicted John

Cancer Virus Victory Near?

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Within a year, scientists should isolate one or two viruses that they can prove cause human cancers, a prominent specialist predicts.

If this comes about, it could open the door to vaccinating people against those specific cancers, much like a polio vaccination.

Or it could provide a means through which doctors could tell if the cancer virus and disease were still present and active, or whether curative treatments were being effective.

The prediction comes from Dr. Sol Spiegelman, director of the Institute of Cancer Research at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City.

His own work points strongly to evidence that viruses cause human cancer.

Viruses are known to cause cancers in chickens and other animals.

Spiegelman said he knows of two groups of researchers whose work he thinks will, within the year, demonstrate that a virus can cause human cancer. One involves a cancer of the breast and the other a cancer of bone, he said.

Speaking on Monday to a seminar for science writers sponsored by the American Cancer Society, Spiegelman declined to identify the two groups of researchers. He said neither is his own, which has come close to such proof.

If viruses should be shown to cause human cancers, it definitely does not mean that a person with cancer is infectious to other people, Spiegelman and others emphasized.

He said that Mrs. Johnson had traveled personally on the aircraft on occasion.

The milk producers pay $10,000 per year for the insurance and other intangible expenses, plus $7,000 per month for a minimum 40 flying hours, at $175 an hour. The dairy cooperative pays another $175 for each flying hour over 40 hours per month, plus fuel and any extra expenses incurred by the pilot.

SBA Report Admits Trouble In Offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration has delivered a report to Congress that shows serious problems in nearly one-fourth of its offices.

A copy of the report obtained by The Associated Press shows problems ranging from high rates of bad loans to bank bailouts to what is called serious conflicts of interest.

The report was a 94-page section deleted from a city-by-city audit made public last Thursday.

Rep. Lawrence Williams, R-Pa., said Monday that SBA Administrator Thomas Kleppe had misled the news media with that report because the 94 pages were deleted.

Kleppe was unavailable for comment, but a top deputy disputed Williams' claims.

At the time the 59-city audit was made public, Kleppe had declared that "SBA has no more Richmonds" — a reference to scandals at the state office in Virginia, whose director had been fired.

He said the intensive, wide-ranging internal probe has "unearthed no serious problems other than the previously mentioned situation ..."

The 94-page section deleted from the full report contains auditors' comments that SBA offices in 13 cities showed evidence of "immediate serious problems. Only seven of the 59 cities were said to have no problems.

Williams, ranking Republican on the House Banking subcommittee that received the report, said that what Kleppe "told the press and what he told the Small Business subcommittee are not the same.

"In fact, the whole SBA handling of the report was designed to withhold the truth from the press," Williams said.

Assistant SBA Administrator Randall L. Woods said that when the full report was released "we indicated to the press, as well as the committee members, that the section on the mini-reviews was being extracted because it contained unsubstantiated, raw hand-written notations by our reviewers ..."

"To release this unsubstantiated material would have done grave and serious harm, we felt, to the small business involved," Woods said. "We rents for $275 per flying hour.

He said the Johnson family hasn't benefited from the arrangement. "We haven't made money on the proposition. The statement has been made to me by my bookkeeper that it didn't cover the depreciation," he said.

The milk producers' headquarters is in San Antonio, Tex., roughly 50 air miles from the Johnson airstrip.

The cooperative's board originally tried to extricate itself from the air-plane deal a few months before the original lease agreement, covering a cheaper version of the airplane model, expired June 30, 1972.

Ehrlichman, Colson, G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez and Felipe DeDiego are charged with violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. In addition, Ehrlichman is charged with lying to the FBI and a grand jury.

In another court filing, the special prosecutor's office asked the appeals court to deny Watergate conspirator James W. McCord's motion for reversal of his conviction on conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping charges.

The auditors had listed these 13 cities with having "immediate serious problems": Cincinnati; Detroit; Helena, Mont.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Madison, Wis.; Marquette, Wis.; Milwaukee; New Orleans, Oklahoma City; San Antonio; San Diego; St. Louis and the District of Columbia.

Nude Couple Handcuffed

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Police rushed to a suburban home to find a man and his wife handcuffed together in the nude.

Patrolman Fred Hansen said the embarrassed couple told him they were "fooling around" with a pair of handcuffs Sunday and locked each other to a ceiling-high bookcase.

The husband said he accidentally dropped the key and his dog promptly swallowed it.

The couple managed to dial the telephone operator to request assistance. Hansen said he freed them with his own handcuff key.

"I feel like kicking the hell out of that dog," the nude man said.

Pope Paul VI Said Ailing With Flu

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI is sick in bed again, the Vatican announced today. It was the second time in three weeks that the 76-year-old pontiff has been ill.

The Vatican announcement said the Pope's doctors had ordered him to cancel his weekly public audience Wednesday. Vatican sources said he had a mild return of the influenza which hit him March 4-9.

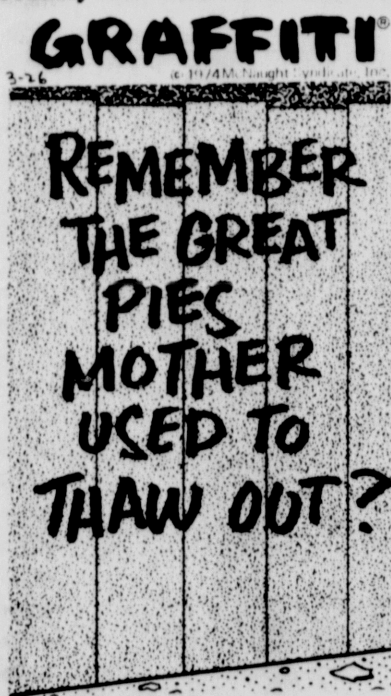

Conference Eyes Campaign Measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A bipartisan bill revising Ohio's campaign financing laws will go to a joint conference committee but Senate-house differences probably can be worked out in "15 or 20 minutes," one of its Senate sponsors says.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, made the optimistic prediction Monday night as the lawmakers opened their week's business with unusual Monday night floor sessions. They normally don't return from weekend recess until Tuesdays.

Van Meter, a co-sponsor along with Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, said some of the changes the Senate will insist upon are technical and came from the Legislative Service Commission too late to be included in the Senate version of the bill.

However, he said the Senate "probably will want to do something

LBJ Firm Gets Plane Rental From Milk Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's largest dairy cooperative, focus of Watergate investigations, pays Lady Bird Johnson's family corporation $94,000 a year for use of an airplane hangared at the LBJ Ranch, The Associated Press has learned.

A spokesman for the Johnson interests said the arrangement is a bargain for the dairy group, Associated Milk Producers Inc. However, the cooperative's board of directors had tried to end the lease arrangement, which is scheduled to run until April 5, 1976.

The lease arrangement was initiated by the co-op's former general

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices showed little change in the stock market today as the lethargy that gripped the market about a week ago deepened.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials inched up .08 to 881.10, but declines had a small lead over advances in very light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the only activity of substance appeared to represent institutional adjusting of portfolios as the quarterly reporting date approaches.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .23 to 98.16.

The Amex volume leader was Syntex, down 2 at 57 1/2.

The NYSE's noon index of all its listed common stocks was up .08 to 52.24.

Groups Organize Anti-Litter Campaign

CLEAN-UP COMMITTEE—Preparing for the "anti-litter" campaign in conjunction with the annual Chamber of Commerce "clean-up" week, from the left, are: Judy Hall, Pickaway County Garden Club Anti-Litter Chairman; Jim Hall, Indian Guide's Paper Drive Chariman; Dan Smith, representing Scout Troop 205; Don Brandon, Chamber of Commerce, Community Appearance Committee Chairman.

The Pickaway County Garden Club is sponsoring an "anti-litter" campaign in conjunction with the annual Chamber of Commerce "clean-up" week, held the first week in May.

The YMCA Indian Guides will begin the "clean-up" week by sponsoring a paper drive 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 27. According to Jim Hall, paper drive chairman, the drive will cover Circleville, Ashville, Logan Elm and Knollwood areas. Rural residents can drop their papers off at the local YMCA or call 474-8621 to arrange for a paper pick-up.

Hall requests that papers be placed by the street curb and that everyone start saving papers and magazines now to help "recycle and save a tree."

Dan Smith, 121 E. Union, a member of Boy Scout Troop 205, is helping the Pickaway County Garden Club clean Stage's Pond and other creeks and streams. The scouts are cleaning out cement deposits and rubbish which have been discarded in the pond area.

Commissioners Purchase Road Sweeper

Pickaway County Commissioners Wayne Hines, Dick T. Tootle and L. Robert Liston Jr. Monday accepted the bid of $3,665 for a highway power sweeper for the county engineer's department.

The low bid was submitted by Bill Jaekels of Washington C. H. Other bids were: $3,880 by Ray Storts of Chillicothe; $3,987.80 by the J&H Distributing Co.

A bid of $3,590.35 for a court recording system was submitted by Dictaphone Inc. It was the lone bid submitted for the system and was referred to Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer for approval before commissioners took action.

In other business Monday, the firm of Dummund-Sifford and Associates was employed to design a waste water treatment plant and sewers for the Perrill Road area in Harrison Twp.

The performance bond of Brookhill Subdivision was released and the roads in the division located just east of Circleville turned over to the Circleville Twp. trustees for maintenance.

Commissioners are to meet Thursday with County Prosecutor Richard Gerhardt to discuss the proposed Ashville annexation. A public hearing was held last Wednesday concerning the annexation.

Junk Car Ignites Inside Garage

The Circleville Fire Department was dispatched to the Lloyd Petty residence at 5:20 p.m. Monday when a junk car in the garage ignited. Lloyd Petty Jr. was using a cutting torch to remove the exhaust system from the car when the inside of the vehicle was set ablaze.

Approximately $25 loss was reported on the vehicle. Firemen worked for 20 minutes dousing the flames which were a threat to the building at 130 N. Pickaway St.

Legion Plans Anniversary Celebration Saturday

Members of the Hall-Adkins Post 134, American Legion, have joined with fellow members across the country in celebrating the Legion's 55th birthday during March it was announced by Post Commander George Brown today.

It was at a meeting of representatives of the various outfits of the American Expeditionary Force of World War I convening at Paris, France, that this organization of war veterans was founded. That was March 15-17, 1919.

Today the Legion is still actively engaged in the pursuit of a goal which could mean its eventual demise. With a membership of 2.7 million men and women, all veterans of wars of the 20th Century, the Legion remains firmly dedicated to principles which could bring about that long sought after era where there would be no more war veterans from which its membership could be drawn.

At age 55 the Legion is calling upon all veterans everywhere to "be counted again". Every veteran at one time or another stepped forward and was counted as a member of the country's military forces. He or she was counted in the pursuit of the nation's purpose to preserve and protect our priceless freedoms and defend the cause of individual dignity.

As Legionnaires, these same war veterans can "be counted again"—counted as members of a patriotic organization that stands for all that is best in American life, an organization dedicated to serving the communities and neighborhoods of America, Brown said.

The American Legion is using the occasion of its 55th Anniversary not to reflect on past achievements but rather to muster increasing strength to meet the responsibilities which will challenge this gigantic fraternity in the years ahead. For the American Legion this 55th anniversary is a time to make sure it will "be counted again" as it strives to meet its responsibilities to the veterans and their families and fulfill its obligation to serve community, state and nation.

Local legion festivities are being planned for Saturday, highlighted by a dinner-dance.

Dr. Michael J. Chakeres, London, past commander of the state of Ohio American Legion will be the guest speaker. Other special guests will include county Americanism test winners, local public officials and Legion dignitaries from all over Ohio.

A Page Of Opinion

Not Too Soon

Solar energy, which to many seems the ideal substitute for fossil fuels, has a tough and probably lengthy road ahead before it makes an appreciable dent in energy supplies. The theory of solar energy is perfect. It utilizes a free and abundantly available source to create as much electricity or motive power as anyone might wish.

But accomplishment is far distant from theory at this point. Although more money than ever is being spent on solar energy research ($32 million by the federal government alone next year), any influence on a significant number of homes may be decades away.

The chairman of the House subcommittee on energy, Rep. Mike McCormack, says: "Solar energy is very much in its infancy. It's extremely optimistic to expect it to contribute 1 per cent of total energy demand in the country in 20 years."

However long it may take, it is not too early to start an all-out and prolonged effort to construct the technical data needed to bring solar energy into reality at a reasonable cost. There are many today who wish the effort had been started 20 years ago.

Good Night Chet And Others

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—You reach an age at which you pick up the newspaper at your door or newsstand, plunge through only the headlines of Watergate, impeachment and what happened to your favorite team and maybe Blondie, and then thumb swiftly to the obituary page. There, as time ticks on, you find yourself more and more among friends.

My brothers and sisters used to laugh when our mother skipped over such breathtaking stories as the signing of the Kellogg-Briand Pact — which, as you remember, forever outlawed war as a means of settling international disputes — and flew like a Capistrano swallow right for the obit page of the old Washington Star.

She would then from time to time whisper, "Oh, my!" with great feeling. Occasionally she would add, "So young!" which meant the late lamented was younger than she.

None of us laughs any more at that treasured memory.

Along with a lot of other people eroding around the news business, I had a saddening triple header the other day: Chet Huntley, Max Kase and Charles Hoerter — formerly, and respectively, of NBC, the N.Y. Journal-American, and the N.Y. Daily News. The week before, it was Bernie Relin, a first-rate public relations man and general all-around benefactor, Ernie Barcella, who worked brilliantly for UPI and General Motors, and, in the recent past, we lost Arthur Daley, of the New York Times, and Jimmy Cannon of King Features, the New York Journal-American and New York Post.

Looking at their tiny, generally fuzzy pictures imbedded in their obits it was a dismal feeling to realize that this would be the last time I'd see images of friends I had known, worked with, laughed with, drank with and admired so much — in glorious technicolor.

It was also depressing to consider what short shrift the obit writers give to one's dead friends. Obit writers, a special breed more intimately related to grave diggers than to living, breathing newsmen, seem to have a rule of never telephoning the right people when researching their stories. They are something like ministers of God pressed into delivering eulogies — on short notice — over departed souls they never knew, never read, never listened to, and don't give a damn about.

Chet Huntley did a lot to give the airy nothingness of television newscasting a local habitation and a name, as Shakespeare more or less said of a poet. His dignity, knowledge, industriousness added to dimensions Ed Murrow had forced upon that medium. Chet had the courage of his sound convictions, even to holding still in the face of a strike he — a union man at heart — didn't believe in. His serious mien was a perfect backdrop for the impish commentaries of his partner, David Brinkley. But he was the rock of that combination, the good sound Gibraltar. Brinkley was the waves.

A lot of TV stars go on to great riches in other fields: streets are named for them in Florida and California. Huntley had a hard time getting permission to build a dirt road into his Montana property after he retired. He was hounded politically, I always thought, when all he wanted was to open glorious lands he knew and loved to urban inmates he had been talking to for years.

Max Kase was an unselfish sports editor, no mean achievement. He gave his guys a break, built up their by-lines, provided a soft shoulder of which they could cry when needed. He did more things for worthwhile charities than most million-dollar foundations. Max saved college basketball by exposing the few apple-cheeked crooks who might have rotted the whole barrel. For that he won a Pulitzer citation . . . but never wore it on his arm. His obit forgot to mention that he was a first class, decent, honest, wonderful guy.

Charlie Hoerter had a rags to riches life that has just about disappeared from newspaper work. He started on the N.Y. News as a copy boy for the now legendary — and thriving Marshall Hunt of Shitpoke Flats, Olympia, Wash., the first sports editor of the late Captain Patterson's pioneering New York tabloid. For a time in its early years, at the beginning of the 1920s, the Golden Age of Sports as Grantland Rice named it (Westbrook Pegler called it the Era of Wonderful Nonsense), there were just the two of them, General Hunt and Private Hoerter. Charlie went to the top over the years, nurtured the likes of Paul Gallico, Jack Miley, Jimmy Powers and helped develop a lot of latter-day stars such as Dick Young and Gene Ward.

The obit I read on Bernie Relin seemed to stress that his biggest contribution in life was his secret contribution of $3,000 to clean up Central Park after a Barbra Streisand concert. He spent a zillion times that much on the causes of the young, the old, the unemployed; ran corporations employing tens of thousands of people, and was the most congenial touch in town. Two nights before he died, he stopped a noisy meeting of a club we belonged to, The Skeeters, and asked for a moment of prayer for our friend Mack Kriender.

And so it goes. Ernie Barcella was as good a reporter as I ever met. He made that sometimes difficult jump from spot news to public relations, at the urging of Tony DeLorenzo of G.M., and handled the job with great distinction, honesty, and the priceless trait all of the above shared, a genuine touch of class.

God bless . . .

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Even before ecology became paramount, insurers knew that civilization and nature often mixed poorly, especially when drainage areas were paved for parking and factories were built on flood plains.

When available, flood insurance sold at forbidding prices, and most agents and homeowners and businessmen didn't even consider such protection. Insurers claimed it was a losing matter.

That notion persisted among businessmen and homeowners, even though in recent years a federally subsidized program makes low-cost flood insurance available to communities that take certain precautions against inundation.

And so, when nature and civilization clashed two years ago few homeowners or businessmen had any insurance at all. More than $1.7 billion of damage was done by floods in the East, and only a small fraction was insured.

The destruction in Rapid City, S.D., from another flood provides stark details:

In that Black Hills community about 700 homes, 150 business structures and 500 mobile homes were destroyed.

Hundreds of other homes were damaged.

After the rains ceased it was learned that only 27 homes and 2 businesses had flood insurance. The total loss was about $100 million, but only $166,451 was covered by flood insurance.

It became clear that few people in Rapid City knew that their community was eligible for low cost flood insurance, subsidized by the government and sold through company agents in the same manner as any other insurance.

Since the disasters of two years ago flood insurance has caught on. In November 1970, only 42,900 policies existed, providing $673 million of coverage. As of Jan. 31, 316,000 policies provided $5.5 billion of coverage.

The 1972 floods spurred many flood-prone communities to qualify for the National Flood Insurance Program. From May 31, 1972 to May 31, 1973, the number of qualified communities jumped to 2,275 from 1,201. It now exceeds 3,000.

To become eligible, communities must agree to zoning and land use restrictions — to restrain civilization from encroaching on the water's rights, so to speak. Requirements met, almost any agent can provide the coverage. As a result of legislation signed Dec. 31, 1973, the limits of coverage have been greatly enlarged.

Single-family homes may be insured for up to $35,000, double the earlier limit. Two-family to four-family structures and small businesses may be insured for up to $100,000, compared with $30,000 previously.

The residential policy costs 25 cents for each $100 of insurance, with the minimum premium pegged at $25. For the maximum coverage of $35,000 a homeowner would pay $87.50. The nonresidential rate is 40 cents a $100.

Contents also may be insured, in residential buildings for a maximum of $10,000 at 35 cents for each $100, and is nonresidential structures for up to $100,000 at a 75 cents per $100 rate.

Perhaps most important, the new legislation requires the Department of Housing and Urban Development to identify flood-prone areas by July 1. Previously the initiative was left to the communities, and many didn't exercise it.

Moreover, communities so identified will be required to participate in the flood insurance program and to adopt and enforce adequate flood ordinances.

A tip given by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriffs Bryan Custer and Miller Fissell Wednesday resulted in the apprehension of an escaped convict of the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison and the arrest of three other men on charges of transporting moonshine in Chillicothe.

The history of one-room school buildings in Pickaway County came to its "finis" Thursday evening when the Monroe Twp. board of education in a meeting with D. L. Buchanan, county superintendent of schools, agreed to abolish the Hill School in Monroe Twp. located near the Sarah Kidney home and which for a number of years has housed 30 students, including eight grades.

Circleville High School's contestants in the general scholarship tests given here last Saturday made a notable record. David Lewis Buchanan Jr., W. Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Someone told me that high blood pressure can be caused by a tumor. No doctor has ever suggested this as a possible cause of my blood pressure. Mr. T.M., N.M.

Dear Mr. M.:

The authoritative "someone" who told you this was indeed privy to information that is true, although exceedingly rare.

The tumor you refer to, pheochromocytoma, is probably responsible for less than one-half of one per cent of all cases of severe high blood pressure. This cause is insignificant in terms of the vast number of cases of hypertension, or high blood pressure, treated by physicians everywhere.

High blood pressure is only one of a group of symptoms associated with this rare type of tumor. Only when these symptoms occur together does the doctor give consideration to its possibility.

I would like my readers to understand that when a physician examines a patient he entertains all the possibilities that might be responsible for a particular group of symptoms. Patients would be done a great injustice if their doctors expressed to them all the possibilities that he was considering during the examination.

Highly anxious patients would be terrified if such a detailed outline of possibilities were presented before the final diagnosis is made.

My ears become blocked, especially after a flight. The same thing happens even when I have a cold.

Can anything be done about it?

Miss D.A., Wisc.

Dear Miss A.:

The eustachian tube is a small opening that leads from the back of the nose to the middle ear.

The free flow of air keeps the eardrum in balance. Normally, this tube is closed, but opens when we swallow or yawn. This process is controlled by two tiny muscles that act as safety valves.

When the tube is obstructed and no air passes through it, a vacuum occurs that is responsible for the blocked sensation you describe.

Allergies, rapid descent in an airplane, masses of adenoid tissue in children, infection of the sinuses, nasal polyps, and acute colds can obstruct the eustachian tube.

Some of these causes can be removed if found to be present.

See Slowdown In Mexican Beef

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today Mexico may diminish in the distant future as a major source of live cattle for U.S. feedlots and boneless beef because of growing demand among Mexican consumers.

But Mexico also is a big buyer of U.S. livestock and related products, including dairy breeding animals and frozen bull semen. Thus, a report by the Foreign Agricultural Service said, the two-way trade is expected to continue brisk for "at least another five years."

"But over the longterm, the outlook is somewhat uncertain as Mexico's population increases and fewer live cattle are available for export," the report said.

Prevention Of Cancer Promoted

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — The President of the American Cancer Society has proposed a worldwide cooperative effort to dig out knowledge which "would be useful for immediate application to cancer control."

Out of the annual total of 350,000 cancer deaths, "at least 100,000 American lives that we know about are needlessly lost to cancer each year," Dr. Justin N. Stein told a Cancer Society seminar for science writers Sunday.

Most of those facing high risks of contracting cancer of the lungs, breasts, stomach, cervix, colon and rectum, could be saved by earlier diagnosis or by avoiding some risks. These include cigarette smoking in case of lung cancers, or exposure to chemicals in the environment, Dr. Stein said.

He proposed a formalized system embracing efforts of the American Cancer Society, National Cancer Institute, state health departments, medical societies, World Health Organization, and the International Union Against Cancer. The aim would be to protect high-risk people by informing them of solid facts.

To identify the high-risk people, "much remains to be learned about environmental influences, industrial hazards, ecological factors such as atmospheric and water pollution in this country. But much is known to permit us now to make a greater effort toward saving the lives of those who die needlessly every year," Dr. Stein said.

mann, assistant U.S. agricultural attache in Mexico City. He said Mexico is increasing cattle production but that the boost "will about keep pace" with the country's population growth over the next five years.

Mexican feeder cattle have been an important source for many feedlot operators in the southwest, although the imports have fluctuated widely in recent years. Those totaled about 700,000 head in calendar 1973, down from 916,000 in 1972, as the Mexican government held down shipments of both live cattle and beef to help relieve rising meat costs at home.

Sales of U.S. cattle and livestock products have soared, meanwhile, including more than 14,000 dairy breeding cattle worth $7.6 million during the 1972-73 fiscal year ended last June 30. That was up from about 8,000 head sold for $3.7 million the year before.

Freckmann said that in the first four months of the fiscal year that began last July 1 dairy cattle sales to Mexico totaled more than 8,000 head worth $4.5 million, reflecting higher prices per animal.

"Of growing importance have been U.S. exports of frozen bull semen," Freckmann said. "In fiscal 1972, those exports were valued at $65,000, while last year they grew to $270,000 and reached $110,000 during the first four months of fiscal 1974."

Last Green Berets Leave Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Thai army today honored the U.S. Army Special Forces at an airport ceremony as the last 300 Green Berets left the country.

The ceremony marked the end of 14 years of Special Forces activity in Thailand. Based at Lopburi, 100 miles north of Bangkok, Green Berets trained Thai soldiers in special warfare techniques.

About 35,000 U.S. servicemen are still stationed in Thailand.

Union President Wesley Wells said the local, which represents workers at Chrysler Corp. plants here, made the endorsement at a meeting Sunday.

They'll Do It Every Time

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Moochers Provoke Her

DEAR ABBY: I play cards with several different groups of women. Everyone who owns a car loves it home, and I always seem to be the one who has to pick up three or four women and drive them home. With the energy crisis, I feel this is unfair.

How about a comment on transportation moochers?

CONSTANT READER
DEAR CONSTANT: Next time you have all the moochers in your car, try this: "Girls, this is your chauffeur speaking. Because of the energy crisis, we must all take turns driving. We'll start alphabetically. Mrs. Applebaum, you're first!"

DEAR ABBY: It's high time you published something in favor of smoking.

I am a smoker and I enjoy it. Smoking has long been one of life's pleasures, and to deny it is absurd.

In order to survive in the world today, one must learn how to give and take, and for a nonsmoker to make a smoker uncomfortable by depriving him of his smoking pleasure is just as selfish as it is for a smoker to make a nonsmoker uncomfortable by smoking in his presence.

If I sense that someone really objects to my smoking, I take myself and my cigarette into another room. I think the nonsmoker should have the same consideration for the smoker, and if the smoke bothers him, HE should move.

There should be a 50-50 compromise. The smokers have been made to feel guilty long enough, and it's time the nonsmokers learned to cope with a smoke-filled society. His nonsmoking righteousness makes me just as angry as my smoke makes him!

SICK OF NON-SMOKERS IN CINC

DEAR SICK: There's about as much substance to your argument as there is in a cloud of smoke. If one deliberately elects to pollute the air because of a habit he either will not or cannot control-let HIM move.

CONFIDENTIAL TO J.W.G.: Better start looking around for another job. From too much yes Sir, No Sir, a man can get an Ul-sir.

Tower Backs President's Innocence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, long a supporter of President Nixon, says evidence exists to exonerate the President but, despite pleas by the Republican leadership, Nixon refuses to release it.

"I'm hopeful this material will be released that is exculpatory of the President," the Texas Republican, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said in an interview.

"I'm convinced in my own mind. I can't go much beyond that. A number of us have been urging him to open up," Tower said.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said in January that material he has seen shows John W. Dean III, the former presidential counsel, perjured himself when he testified Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up before March 21, 1973.

Tower predicted Nixon would still be in office by next November's elections. But when asked if this would be best for the Republican party, he replied: "It's a long time away. It depends on the climate at the moment."

He said Nixon is refusing to release the material because of his "jealousy of the institution of the presidency."

But Tower said "the leadership collectively has urged it."

Townships In For Revolution?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio township government, unchanged for 170 years, may be on the verge of revolution.

Urbanized townships which have grown in population but not in power want the same ordinance-making powers of cities to cope with challenges ranging from better police protection to improved water and sewer facilities.

Nearly one-third of Ohioans live in the state's 1,320 townships, and 73 of the townships have populations of 6,000 or more.

The biggest township is Colerain in Hamilton County with 51,000 persons. The population is equal to East Liverpool, Piqua and Van Wert combined.

Chester Hummell, executive director of the Ohio State Association of Township Trustees and Clerks, said, "Townships only have authority given them by the legislature. If boards of trustees have not been granted the power to do something, the only place they can get it is from the legislature."

"That makes the state legislature the municipal council for people living in unincorporated areas."

Hummell and township trustees want the power where the problems are.

He said two bills before the 110th

General Assembly "would give townships the same power that municipalities have. Then people in townships could look for a solution through their local government."

Hummell added, "Cities have been living under the luxury of home rule since 1912. Why should some forms of local government have it and not others?"

Township powers are limited to road service, fire and police service, zoning, some environmental protection and parks and recreation.

They cannot incur a general debt, except in anticipation of voted special assessments for roads or sidewalks and for fire and road equipment. They also have greatly limited taxing authority.

Some townships want the power to establish speed limits and control noise on and off public highways. They also want authority to clean streets, provide water supplies and to engage in redevelopment activities.

"By the time a township gets to the size of a city, it should have the same authority," Hummell said. An incorporated community becomes a city when its population surpasses 5,000.

Hummell does not expect the legislature to give townships more power this year, but he has hopes for the 111th General Assembly, beginning January 1975.

"There should be impetus in the 111th," he added.

Flag Law Ruled Void

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday struck down a Massachusetts law forbidding contemptuous treatment of the American flag on grounds that the statute was too vague.

But the court indicated that more specific statutes might be acceptable.

The court ruled 6 to 3 that the Massachusetts law was too vague to warn anyone about the kind of conduct that would be considered criminal and was thus a denial of due process.

The decision did not hinge on concerns for free speech.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., invited legislatures to be more specific in defining the kind of flag behavior they intend to outlaw.

GM Raises Auto Prices

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors says it will increase retail car and truck prices an average $28 in the next several days.

The giant auto maker cited higher delivery and production costs for the price hike, its third since the 1974 model year began last September.

The GM announcement Sunday came after the federal Cost of Living Council approved a $50-per-car increase for American Motors. The council indicated in its ruling Friday that it would not challenge a Chrysler increase of $28, effective today.

The council also said that a commitment made by three of the makers last December to limit price hikes for 1974-model vehicles did not cover adjustments for destination charges.

General Motors said Sunday that $15 of the new $28 retail increase will go for destination charges.

Ford said recently it has no plans to seek a further price increase on 1974-model cars. The firm increased destination charges $25 per vehicle on March 12.

All four U.S. automakers are expected to raise prices again when 1975 models debut in September.

Television Blacklist Charges Levelled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Is there a new kind of blacklist that robs actors of jobs because they aren't familiar enough to the television public?

The Screen Actors Guild thinks that such a situation may exist, and it called a meeting this week with other guilds to discuss means to combat it.

At issue is a polling service called TvQ, which lists performers according to their popularity. On a recent listing, Lucille Ball was first with 98 per cent familiarity, Johnny Cash and Bill Cosby tied for second with 96, and Doris Day, Fred MacMurray and Dick Van Dyke had 95.

The Screen Actors Guild has heard reports that performers who place far down the list or not at all have been turned down for roles in TV movies and series pilots.

"The guild frowns on this," said president Dennis Weaver. "Such a system doesn't make sense, and to my way of thinking it's unworkable. Some of the top actors around aren't even on the list; a performer has to be put on it by the clients of TvQ."

Weaver said that guild members believe use of TvQ to be widespread in the industry. The networks deny this. A CBS programming executive said he was scarcely aware of TvQ's existence "and I doubt that it is an element in casting." CBS does not subscribe to TvQ. ABC and NBC do.

Barry Diller, ABC's vice president in charge of prime time television, commented: "I'm amazed at how these things get blown up. To utilize TvQ to cast individual actors on a negative basis would be foolish. We don't do it.

"TvQ does have a positive value. If you see someone in a subsidiary role on a series whose popularity is larger than it normally would be, you might say, 'Let's find something for him next season.' But I don't think anyone rejects an actor because of a rating."

Larry White, vice president of programming for NBC, commented: "TvQ, along with many other sources of information, is very useful in making decisions, but it is not a determining factor. We try to cast by using the best possible actor."

Walkouts By Teachers Continue

By The Associated Press
Teachers' strikes affecting more than 11,500 pupils in two Ohio school systems continued into their second day with little progress reported in contract negotiations.

Classrooms remained open in the Louisville district in Stark County and the Mad River Township system near Dayton during the first day of the walkouts Monday, but attendance was low.

Less than 10 per cent of the 4,200 students in the Louisville district showed up and only 2,400 of the 7,400 in the Mad River system reported for classes.

Some 165 teachers struck in Louisville after members of the Louisville Education Association rejected the school board's latest contract offer. The dispute reportedly centered on a cost of living increase demand.

At Mad River, 92 per cent of the district's 387 teachers joined the strike, called two weeks earlier when negotiations broke down. At issue there were wages, fringe benefits and improved grievance procedures.

Negotiations continued in both districts.

The Louisville school board met into the early morning hours with teachers' representatives in an effort to resolve the dispute. At Mad River, negotiators were to resume bargaining at 10 a.m.

Rep. Brown Seeks New Government Look

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, said Monday the best contribution the federal government can make to the nation and its economy is to try "to create some political stability and integrity for itself."

Brown, a member of the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, said the almost "hyper-scrutiny" by Congress, the news media and public of presidential actions has compromised the ability of the executive branch to propose and implement policy decisions.

Metzenbaum Urges Controls On Oil Firms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said Monday that Congress should place more effective controls on the oil companies because of the "detrimental impact" they are having on the nation's economy.

If Congress doesn't act soon, Metzenbaum told newsmen, there could be as much as a 6 per cent decline in the Gross National Product and a 6 per cent rise in unemployment.

Metzenbaum said the oil companies are not gouging the economy intentionally, but "are looking out for their own interests." He said oil firms showed increased profits of $10 billion last year, double those of the previous year.

Metzenbaum said he will propose legislation to restrict the prices American oil companies pay their foreign subsidiaries.

He said he will meet this week with Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., to draft the bill with the cooperation of the Federal Energy Office.

The senator said that even though there are controls on oil companies, prices will continue to soar if payments are not controlled to their affiliates overseas.

Oil companies refuse to cooperate with the government in controlling those prices, he said.

Metzenbaum said he would favor an excess profits tax on the oil companies. He said a credit could be given to firms who put the money into development of refineries and oil exploration.

He said he would not support nationalization of oil companies, but would favor a national oil corporation "to develop oil on federal priorities."

A national oil company could serve as a balance by which Americans could get a clearer idea of what private oil companies are doing, Metzenbaum said.

Prince Charles Romance Reported

LONDON (AP) — British newspapers today renewed their speculation that Prince Charles will marry Lady Jane Wellesey, daughter of the Duke of Wellington, because she accompanied the royal party at the annual Royal Film Performance.

Lady Jane, 22, was the guest of Queen Mother Elizabeth, who headed the party Monday night at the premiere of "The Three Musketeers." The group also included Princess Alexandra, a niece of the queen mother, and her husband, Angus Ogilvy.

Charles, the 25-year-old heir to the British throne, is in the navy aboard the frigate Jupiter, which arrived Monday at Acapulco, Mexico, from San Diego, Calif. The papers have been talking about a romance between the two, despite numerous denials, since they began dating about a year ago.

Nothing New Under The Sun, Antique Auto Collector Finds

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Rotary engines, smog devices, shock-absorbing bumpers.

To some they are ingenious new inventions from Detroit. But to the operators of the world's largest private automobile collection here, they are merely flashes from the past.

"There's nothing new in cars," says Jim Edwards, a spokesman for Harrah's automobile collection. "Nothing's really changed in the last 60 years."

"When the automobile was first coming onto the scene, there were hundreds of auto makers, and many of them had some pretty ingenious ideas."

One of those ideas was the rotary engine which was first introduced by the Adams-Farwell in 1906. In addition, the Adams offered a removable steering wheel and control pedals to convert the car from a two-seat coupe to a single-seat roadster.

And smog? Detroit said it had made great progress in reducing pollution when it put double burners on engine exhaust systems a few years ago.

The double burner returns exhaust to the engine for a second burning, exactly as in the 1906 Compound which also offered power brakes for good measure.

3 Wooster Residents Held For Extortion

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Magistrate John Ergazos Monday bound three Wooster residents over to a federal grand jury on extortion charges. He continued bail at $100,000 each for Larry N. Cooper, 26, Gwendolyn, Y. McCutcheon, 21, and Carol Holmes, 19.

The three are accused of demanding free radio time in exchange for the life of a mysterious hostage March 16. FBI agents arrested the trio at their Wooster apartment, but no hostage was found.

Prince Philip Hurt In Horse Mishap

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip was thrown to the ground when a horse-drawn light wagon he was driving overturned on the grounds of Windsor Castle just west of London.

The 52-year-old prince, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, was kicked Monday by one of the four horses.

"Nothing was broken, but he was very badly shaken and bruised," said a spokesman at Buckingham Palace.

The prince's accident occurred shortly after his daughter, Princess Anne, visited Windsor to brief her parents on the attempt to kidnap her last Tuesday.

Too Many Teachers Hurt Budget

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Board of Education says inflation and too many teachers have wreaked havoc with its 1974 budget.

The board Monday adopted a $73.5 million budget for 1974—$4 million more than last year's.

Inflation is blamed by the board for the increase.

But the board says inaccurate projections of teacher needs have left the system with 165 teachers more than are needed and has forced the board to drop many of its proposed programs.

Virginia Griffin, chairman of the board's finance committee, said the extra teachers will have to have their contracts terminated at the end of the school year.

She said more than $2.7 million will have been lost by that time due to the extra teachers. She said the board budgeted this year's teacher expenses with a goal of 28 students per teacher.

Mrs. Griffin said students dropping out and moving away brought that ratio to 25 to 1.

Supt. Donald Waldrip has begun a study to determine how the mistake was made.

Increasing Crime Seen In Israel

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Inspector General of the Israeli state police said that crime is increasing in Israel, but not on a per capita basis.

"We've got all the various types of crime," said Inspector General Shaul Rosolio, during a visit here Monday. "Burglary of homes and business, that's the most common crime. We've got murder, too, of course, but they're usually murders of passion. Not the wanton killing, the killing for killing's sake, that you find some other places."

Rosolio is in the U.S. on a 10-day visit.

"Our biggest problem is traffic and the fusing of people converging on Israel from 70 different countries, from the posh areas and from areas where people are cave dwellers," said Rosolio. "To fuse all of these different peoples into a lawabiding citizenry is not easy."

Rosolio said the Arabs create a problem during periods of unrest and demonstrations.

The 49-year-old Inspector General said Israel was a country of 600,000 people in 1948 and now, including all its territories, the population is estimated at 4½ million.

There are no local police in Israel and all jails are federal. Ten per cent of Rosolio's 16,000 member police force are women.

"We think it's a good system," he said. "It's not for everybody, but it works for us."

The record-breaking cold high pressure system which covered Ohio early Monday has now moved off the New England Coast, and southwesterly winds circulating around this high cell have brought relatively warm air north into Ohio.

Compared to a minus three degree reading registered at Toledo at 5 a.m. Monday, Tuesday morning at the same time the mercury at Toledo was 29 above. Nearly all stations in the state are 25 to 30 degrees warmer than 24 hours ago.

This trend to higher temperatures will continue during the day, but a cold front drifting southeastward across the Great Lakes will reverse the trend and bring colder weather as it moves south across Ohio tonight. This Canadian air will not be nearly as severe as the cold air over the weekend.

The extended outlook for Ohio calls for another warming trend beginning Thursday and continuing into the weekend.

Area Women Have Been In News Since Early County Beginning

By SUE BOYER
Herald Staff Writer

Although the equal rights amendment is a major topic in the news today, the women of Circleville and surrounding Pickaway County have been in the news since the early beginnings of the area.

The first child born in Circleville was a girl, Louisa Leiby. The child was born in June of 1811. Her father established the first dry goods store in the newly settled town of Circleville.

The Circleville Home and Hospital was incorporated and established solely by the females of Circleville. It was incorporated April 11, 1894 by five women, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Renick, Mrs. Dorothy R. Turney, Mrs. Sarah A. Heffner, Mrs. Annie S. Sears and Mrs. Rose L. Morris. Mrs. Heffner is given credit for conceiving the idea of the establishment in Circleville.

It combined the features of both a hospital and a home for the aged. The hospital was non-denominational since the women thought no one church nor one man could run such an institution.

After the conception of the idea took form, a group of benevolent Circleville women applied to the board of education for the use of the old colored school on Ohio Street. Since an act of the General Assembly had forbade separate schooling for the colored and the white, the board had no other use for the old building.

The building had been erected in 1871 and was in need of repair. It was also much too small for what Mrs. Heffner had in mind. The building was remodeled throughout and an additional built before the five benefactors opened it for business.

The hospital and home was dedicated May 9, 1895. Some four or five years after its dedication, another addition was built. The cost of both additions and the extensive remodeling exceeded $8,000.

At the time, the hospital department consisted of six private rooms, one six-bed ward, one operating room and a doctor's room. The home could accommodate 15 persons. All those admitted to the home had to be at least 50 years old. The admission fee was graded according to the age of the applicant.

The hospital and home were entirely free of debt by shortly after the turn of the century. It was maintained by fees and donations from the annual Home and Hospital Fair which was held in the commissioners' room in the court house. The fair was considered a grand event of the social year.

The first executive committee, advisory committee and officers were made up entirely of women. The hospital was run and advised by 21 women with Mrs. Heffner holding the position of first president of the institution. Mrs. Sarah A. Faulkerson was the first matron of the hospital.

Oddly enough for the times, all the ladies were referred to by their given names in the early history books. Even though most of them were married, Aaron Van Cleef seldom used their husbands' names in his "History of Pickaway County".

Even the press was in the fair hand of a woman for a time in the nineteenth century. Lillie C. Darst leased the Herald in May 1875 and was editor of the publication until 1883. Miss Darst graduated valedictorian of her class in Circleville city schools in 1865. She was an author, poet and lady of letters and has taken her place among the literary women of Ohio.

During the editorship of Miss Darst, the Herald was Republican.

The ideal set forth by Miss Darst is still an important factor in the county today. Mrs. Esta Tipton owns, publishes and edits the Williamsport News.

Like the spirit of the hospital, it took the "weaker sex" to revive the interest of the library in the county. The first idea of a library was conceived as far back as Feb. 28, 1834, when the Ohio Legislature incorporated the "Circleville Athenaeum". The group's main function was to spread knowledge and learning through reading, discussion and lectures.

The "Athenaeum" was discontinued in 1837 when a notice appeared in the Herald asking those persons having books belonging to the group to return them and those book owners to claim their volumes.

The Lyceum began to meet about the same time the Athenaeum was discontinued. It was followed by similar associations for several years. Meetings and debates of these groups ceased when their meeting place burned in 1851.

For nearly 20 years, the library spirit was dead until several women began a magazine club. They collected several books and had a circulating library among themselves. These books were later donated to the city when a public library was planned.

Several other women in the area spent their efforts to establish a reading room for young men. In 1869, the Young Men's Christian Association was created. In 1871, interested ladies cleared $500 from an entertainment fest to add books to the reading room.

When the YMCA failed, other attempts were made at the library spirit but it wasn't until July 1, 1873 that a library was established in the Odd Fellow's Hall. Miss Ella Barks was elected first librarian. Her first report showed 874 volumes on the shelves and 51 volumes of unbound magazines.

In 1880, the ladies took over the principalship of the High School in Circleville. Between Sept. 1880 and June 1895, five misses occupied the position of principal. Bertha Farr, Emma M. Hall, Vrylena W. Buffum, Mary E. Whipple and Ella C. Drum took turns at the job in those 15 years.

Early women's organizations included the Ladies of the Maccabees, Woman's Relief Corps and Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Indiana Woman Wins Met Pact

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)— Alma Jean Smith, 24, Bloomington, has won a contract with the Met, but don't look for her to be the first woman big league baseball player.

Miss Smith, an Indiana University student, won a year's contract with the Metropolitan Opera of New York City plus a $5,000 cash prize. She surpassed nine other regional finalists in the 21st annual National Auditions sponsored by the Met's National Council.

Miss Smith, whose award-winning presentation included two arias by Puccini and Mozart, has studied voice at Oberlin College in Ohio and sung operatic roles with the Oberlin Music Theater, the Indiana University Opera Theater and the Kentucky Opera Association.

The Department of State was presented several years ago with a six-foot clock made in 1776 at Norwich, Conn., that chimes six different tunes. The tunes, in vogue at the time of the American Revolution, range from such titles as "Shady Bowers" and "Lass of Patty's Mill" to a minuet by Handel.

The Circleville Hive of the Ladies of the Maccabees was organized July 6, 1897 by Rhoda P. Wright. The ladies originally met on the first and third Thursdays of each month at the homes of Ellen V. Nightingale and Mrs. O. H. Dunton.

The charter for the WRC was received Feb. 28, 1888 with 16 charter members. Ella Bowling was the first president.

Organized in Pickaway County in 1890, the WCTU had by 1906 a membership in the county of over 200 in ten active unions. The first union was organized in South Bloomfield by the state organizer. The second organized union was located in Ashville.

With the motto "For God and Home and Every Land", the WCTU stood for the overthrow of liquor traffic, the cause of 9-10 of the world's evil.

Last but not least on the list of early county women is the name of Dr. Esther A. Van Riper. Dr. Van Riper was a Michigan native and a graduate of the Druidic University of America at Buffalo, N. Y. She held several other diplomas including one from the Jacksonian Optical College, Jackson, Mich. She came to this area shortly after the turn of the century.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, three-fifths of the members elected to each house concurring therein, that there shall be submitted to the electors of the state in the manner prescribed by law at the primary election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, 1974, a proposal to amend sections 20 and 31 of Article II, and a proposal to enact section 20a of Article II, of the Constitution of the State of Ohio, to read as follows:

ARTICLE II

Section 20. The General Assembly, in cases not provided for in this constitution, shall fix by law the term of office and the compensation of all public officers; but no change therein shall be made without the approval of the electors of the state at the time such appointed officer takes office.

Section 31. The members and officers of the General Assembly shall receive a fixed compensation, to be prescribed by law, and no other allowance or perquisite either in the payment of postage or otherwise; and no change in their compensation shall take effect during the legislative session within which it was made.

Section 20a. Notwithstanding Section 20 of Article II of the Constitution of Ohio, any increase in compensation fixed by the General Assembly for any public officer, which, because of its being made during his term of office, does not become payable to such officer until after two years from the date of its enactment, shall nevertheless become effective and payable on and after the effective date of the enactment of such increase in compensation.

SCHEDULE

The secretary of state shall place upon the ballot as separate issues the proposal to amend sections 20 and 31 of Article II, and the proposal to enact section 20a of Article II, of the Constitution of Ohio, so as to permit the electorate to vote separately on each such proposal.

If a majority of the electors voting on the foregoing proposals amendments, at the primary election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, 1974, adopt the same, they shall become part of the Constitution of the State of Ohio and existing sections 20 and 31 of Article II of the Constitution of the State of Ohio shall be repealed.

(Amended House Joint Resolution No. 61)

JOINT RESOLUTION

To amend Section 1 of Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Ohio to provide for preparation of the language which appears on the ballot when the General Assembly proposes a constitutional amendment, to that it will properly identify the substance of the proposal, to provide procedures for timely challenges to the adoption and submission of such amendments, and to assure information to the voters about such amendments.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, three-fifths of the members elected to each house concurring therein, that there shall be submitted to the electors of the state in the manner prescribed by law at a special election to be held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, 1974, a proposal to amend Section 1 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Ohio to read as follows:

ARTICLE XVI

Section 1. Either branch of the general assembly may propose amendments to this constitution; and, if the same shall be agreed to by three-fifths of the members elected to each house, such proposed amendments shall be entered on the journals, with the year and date, and shall be filed with the secretary of state at least ninety days before the date of the election at which they are to be submitted to the electors, for their approval or rejection. They shall be submitted on a separate ballot without party designation of any kind, and either a special or a general election as the general assembly may prescribe.

The ballot language for such proposed amendments shall be prescribed by a majority of the Ohio ballot board consisting of the secretary of state and four other members, who shall be designated in a manner prescribed by law and not more than two of whom shall be members of the same political party. The ballot language shall properly identify the substance of the proposal to be voted upon. The ballot need not contain the full text nor a condensed text of the proposal. The board shall also prepare an explanation of the proposal which may include its purpose and effects, and shall certify the ballot language and the explanation to the secretary of state not later than seventy-five days before the election. The ballot language and the explanation shall be available for public inspection in the office of the secretary of state.

The supreme court shall have exclusive, original jurisdiction in all cases challenging the adoption or submission of a proposed constitutional amendment to the electors. No such case challenging the ballot language, the explanation, or the actions or procedures of the general assembly in adopting and submitting a constitutional amendment shall be filed later than sixty-four days before the election. The ballot language shall not be held invalid unless it is such as to mislead, deceive, or defraud the voters.

Unless the general assembly otherwise provides by law for the preparation of arguments for and, if any, against a proposed amendment, the board may prepare such arguments. Such proposed amendments, the ballot language, the explanations, and the arguments, if any, shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks preceding such election, in at least one newspaper of general circulation in each county of the state, where a newspaper is published. The general assembly shall provide by law for other dissemination of information in order to inform the electors concerning proposed amendments. An election on a proposed constitutional amendment submitted by the general assembly shall not be enjoined nor invalidated because the explanation, arguments, or other information is faulty in any way. If the majority of the electors voting on the same shall adopt such amendments the same shall become a part of the constitution. When more than one amendment shall be submitted at the same time, they shall be so submitted as to enable the electors to vote on each amendment, separately.

EFFECTIVE DATE AND REPEAL

If adopted by a majority of the electors voting on this amendment, the amendment shall take immediate effect and existing Section 1 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Ohio shall be repealed.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

Congress has officially designated March 29th as Vietnam Veterans Day to give these young men and women the full honor due them for their service and dedication to our country. These brave Americans must not be overlooked or slighted, for they, above all others, stood by our country while the chips were down and fought in a most unpopular and controversial war.

Yet, for these six million returning veterans, readjustment has not been easy. Returning to their jobs or finding new ones has posed a serious problem for many because of inflation and unemployment. Continuing their education or beginning career studies and training has also been difficult because of the growing cost of higher education. Even with the assistance provided under the highly successful GI education bill, it has become apparent that changes must be made to give more consideration to the special needs of the new era of veterans from Vietnam.

Consequently, the House recently passed with my support amendments to the GI bill to counteract this problem. First, it would grant a much needed 13.6 per cent increase in the monthly allowances of existing law. This means the single veterans enrolled in a full-time program of education would receive $250 per month instead of $220. Veterans with one dependent would receive $297 instead of $261 and those with two dependents who now receive $298 would get $339. For each dependent in excess of two, an additional $20 would be allowed.

By May 1, the cost of living will have jumped by almost the same percentage as those proposed increases, and it is quite clear the current allowances are highly inadequate. Sixty-eight per cent of the veterans now in school, for example, find they must work to make ends meet. Forty per cent must work more than 20 hours a week. Compounding these statistics with those of the American Council on Education showing the Vietnam veteran's family is of a lower income level than the nonvet and about three-fourths of the vets in school now depend on their monthly VA check to pay their bills indicates just how insufficient these benefits are. I am glad, therefore, to see that the House has voted to ease the burden of veterans seeking and needing higher education assistance.

A second provision of the bill would extend from eight to 10 years the time during which a veteran must use his education benefits. Existing law allows eight years, either from the effective date of the act in June 1966, or from discharge — whichever is later. Come May 31st of this year, a substantial number of veterans separated between 1955 and 1966 would find their educational benefits terminated unless the law is changed. Considering the fact that many veterans may have had to delay their educational pursuits for a variety of reasons (but I suspect primarily because they had to work first to help cover the higher costs of schooling), this proposed extension is only fair.

The House-passed veterans education bill would also reduce the disability requirement for eligibility to receive vocational rehabilitation training from 30 per cent to 10 per cent and would make farm cooperative training available for the first time to those dependents and survivors entitled to war orphans and widows educational assistance. In addition, reservists could count periods of active duty for training in computing their educational entitlement, provided there is subsequent active duty of one year or more.

The education bill has been sent to the Senate and the Veterans Committee will begin hearings on these matters shortly. I am hopeful the legislative process can be completed swiftly on these proposals. They are but a small, yet significant, means of showing our gratitude to these dedicated Americans who have invested so much of themselves in the defense of all Americans and the protection of our great democracy.

Find Cities Improving Education

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Families who moved from the cities to the suburbs in the 1960s hoping to find better funded education for their children might consider moving back, says a team of Wright State University researchers.

John Treacy, associate professor of economics, and Russell Harris, have released findings showing school districts within Ohio cities outspent their suburban counterparts by about 15 per cent during the school year 1970-71.

Since the education boom of the 1960s, said the researchers, educators have assumed that money spent per pupil was higher in the suburban schools than in city schools.

While that may have been true then, it is not true in the 1970s, they said.

They blamed a steady increase in the number of school age children in the suburbs, coupled with relatively fixed tax bases, as a big part of the cause.

During the school year, city school districts averaged expenditures of $819 per pupil, compared with $711 per pupil in suburban districts, the report said.

Furthermore, it said, rural school districts trailed both city and suburban areas, falling behind suburban expenditures by an average of $84.

The maximum number of years during which such bonds are to run is 22 years. The estimated average additional tax rate amounts to Forty Cents for each one hundred dollars of valuation, which is 4 mills for each one dollar of valuation, outside of the limitation imposed by Article XII, Section 2 of the Constitution, as certified by the County Auditor.

The Polls for said Election will open at 6:30 o'clock A.M. and remain open until 6:30 o'clock P.M. Daylight Saving Time of said day.

Distaff Kingmaker Busy Again

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Shirley Fletcher began her career as a political campaign manager in the 1968 presidential race.

This year the 38-year-old Mt. Vernon mother of four, wife of the Knox County dog warden, is concentrating on a congressional campaign not even in her district.

"You might say I started at the top and worked myself down," she chuckled.

In 1968 she was chief recruiter and organizer of a movement to make former Gen. Curtis LeMay president of the United States.

In 1974 she is political advisor for Don Gingerich of Franklin, an Independent candidate in the 8th district in southwestern Ohio.

But, one thing the jobs have in common. Mrs. Fletcher is campaigning for a conservative.

Gingerich, like LeMay, is a conservative Republican. He formerly managed the campaigns of state Sen. Donald "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Mid-former two-term congressman and former president of the National Young Republicans Club.

LeMay ended up as vice presidential running mate of Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

"I voted for Wallace in 1968 and I would again if he runs," said Mrs. Fletcher. "I won't say we won't have LeMay back again, but I'm waiting to see what Wallace does."

Mrs. Fletcher, who is doing little active campaigning in the eighth district, still retains the enthusiasm that had her pioneering in the attempt to put LeMay in the White House. She proudly points out Gingerich is author of a book, "No Prize for Second Place."

"I like him and I like his ideas," she said. "He's got basically the same philosophy that I have. I'm not doing much in the campaign but giving advice."

Mrs. Fletcher pictures herself as "a moderate conservative, mostly middle of the road, leaning a little to the right."

Claim Black Republicans Less Damaged By Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The highest ranking black official in President Nixon's first administration, now working to get more black Republicans elected to office, says blacks will be less damaged by Watergate than other GOP candidates.

"A black Republican campaigning in a predominantly black district is campaigning before people who are not surprised at all by the Watergate," Arthur A. Fletcher said in an interview.

"They have been the victims of all kinds of political shenanigans.... That's been their political history. On the other hand, the white candidate is confronted with it because Watergate seems to have embarrassed the kind of idealism that much of white America has allowed itself to believe existed in our political system."

Fletcher, 49, served as an assistant secretary of labor from 1969 to 1971. He is now a Washington-based industrial consultant in the equal employment field.

He was named coordinator of minority affairs for the Republican National Committee last June and set up meetings that led to the newly organized Black Republican Council. "With a little luck we may elect one or two black Republicans to the Congress this time," said Fletcher. "If not, we will definitely have laid the groundwork to get it done in '76."

There are now 16 black members in the House, all Democrats. Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., is the only black senator.

Fletcher said he has been urged by the Republican senatorial committee and other highly placed GOP officials to be a candidate himself against Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., seeking a sixth term at the age of 69.

"I'm a long way from making up my mind, but it's more a possibility than a probability," he said.

Among her many activities is painting, a talent that originally involved her with the LeMay family. She did a painting of the general's father, Irving, a one-time steeplejack.

"His wife didn't like it and said she didn't want it in the house," Mrs. Fletcher recalled. "She said it was a perfect likeness and having one in the house was bad enough."

Being a mother of four hasn't hampered Mrs. Fletcher, even in the LeMay effort.

"I recruited the kids that were old enough for the campaign and then I let LeMay's mother hold the one that was only seven months old at the time," she said.

Kris Kline, Joe Smith Gain MVP Honors

MOST VALUABLE—Kris Kline (left) and Joe Smith (right) were named most valuable players at the Circleville Winter Sports Banquet. Kris was honored for his performance on the hardwood and Joe for his fine work on the wrestling team.

Kris Kline and Joe Smith were named most valuable players in their respective sport at the Tiger Winter Sports Banquet sponsored by the Circleville Athletic Booster Club at the high school Monday night.

The affair honored the varsity and reserve basketball teams, wrestling team, girl's basketball team and cheerleaders.

Kline picked up the MVP for his fine effort and performance on the basketball squad. The blond workhorse not only led his team in scoring and rebounding but continually turned in a great defensive game.

His work gained him a first place berth on the All-South Central Ohio League team, a second team spot on the Central District team and honorable mention on the All-Ohio squad. Chris was always the type performer who "played both ends of the court."

Smith's MVP recognition came from his top performances and leadership as the 119-pound grappler for the Tigers. Joe compiled a 14-5-3 record on the season. He was an All-SCOL performer for the Tigers, placed third in the Circleville Tournament and gained a fourth place spot in the tough Licking Heights tournament.

Both young men were selected for MVP honors by a vote of their teammates.

Coach John Lawhorn introduced the varsity basketball squad and made the presentations to the members. He also announced that Harold Reed and Perry Hoskins had been selected as co-captains of the 1974-75 squad.

Individual varsity cage awards went to: Robin Martin, most assists; Brad Spangler, most improved player; Kris

ALL-SCOL—Receiving trophies at the Circleville Winter Sports Banquet for their selection to the All-South Central League teams were: from the left, first row, Brett

Christy, Tom Marshall, Roger Davis, Joe Smith and Andy Smith. Second row, Tim Wilkinson, Kris Kline, Harold Reed and Jim Cordle.

Kline, most rebounds; Robin Martin, best free throw percentage; Perry Hoskins, best defensive player.

Coach Dennis Stewart introduced his undefeated reserve team, 18-0, and made the presentations. This squad put together the finest record in the history of Circleville reserve teams. Each player was presented with a plaque from the Booster Club.

Individual awards, voted by team members, went to: Warren Yarrick, most improved player; Mike McCoy, best defensive player; George Moore, best free throw percentage.

The wrestling team, who garnered its third straight SCOL title, was presented by Coach Brent Bell.

Individual wrestling awards were presented to: Jim Cordle, most takedowns during the season; Jim Payne, most pins; Brett Christy, most improved wrestler.

Dee Grandstaff made the introductions of her girl's basketball team who had just completed the first year of competition. She also presented the varsity and reserve cheerleaders.

Steve Watters presented trophies to the All-League basketball players and wrestlers. Receiving the trophies were: Kris Kline and Harold Reed of the basketball squad and Andy Smith,

William Camp, president of the Booster Club, was the official host for the affair and Bill Stout handled the master of ceremonies duties. Bill McKinney gave the invocation and benediction.

Camp introduced Dick Bumgarner who will be the next Booster Club president. A standing ovation was given to the ladies of the group who provided a delicious carry in dinner.

Jim Arledge Training 17 At Fairgrounds

BUSY TRAINER—Jim Arledge of Circleville is one of the busiest trainers at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds harness track this spring. There are 17 horses in the Arledge stable.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles about horsemen training at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds harness track.

Jim Arledge has the biggest stables at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds track this year. The veteran Circleville horseman is training 17 head for himself and other central Ohio owners.

The season for Arledge started last week with the opening of Lebanon. He will campaign there, at Northfield, Scioto Downs and on the county fair circuit this summer.

One of the best performers in his stable is Linworth Time, an 8-year-old pacer that took a mark of 2:04.2 at Scioto Downs. It is owned by Arledge.

For Frank Rhoads of Circleville Arledge is training Ready Pick, a 5-year-old pacer that has gone the mile in 2:07.1, also at Scioto Downs.

Sweet and Lively, a 3-year-old pacer sired by Frosty Time and owned by Lloyd Davis of Circleville is also in the stable.

The Woodstock Study Narm of Monticello, N.Y. has a pair of Race Time colts at the Pickaway oval under Arledge's care. They are Racing Scot, a 3-year-old and Sail To Glory, a 2-year-old.

Hoosier Buckeye, owned by Dr. Jerry Maloon of Columbus, is an outstanding 2-year-old pacing prospect in the Arledge stable.

Emily's Party, a 3-year-old pacer by Reporter, is owned jointly by Mrs. Robert Lunsford, West Alexandria; Irene Myers, South Charleston and Arledge.

Tye and James R. Davis own Butler's Dream, a 4-year-old. Tye, of Williamsport, also owns Little Stone, a 2-year-old trotting prospect while James, Route 1, Chillicothe, owns Sweet Berry.

Bill Long of Black Ford owns Our Baby, a 2-year-old and Dorothy Wenner of Bucyrus owns Bingo Pot, a

Roger Nelson Can't Crack Rotation

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Roger Nelson says he has no gripes about not being able to crack the rotation of the Cincinnati Reds.

"I can't get in the rotation, no way," the right-hander said Monday after Cincinnati lost to Houston 2-1 in exhibition baseball here.

"They did the same thing with me in Kansas City," he said. "I started in the bullpen and wound up having a good year."

Nelson was the losing pitcher in Monday's game, but had nothing to be ashamed about. He pitched seven innings, gave up three hits and walked one.

Nelson was out most of last season with a sore right elbow. Monday was the longest stretch he's pitched.

"I can't be upset. I mean I didn't know if I would be able to throw the ball at all when I came to spring training," he added.

N. C. State Wins Tourney

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — The cry of "Wait 'Til Next Year" no longer resounds across Wolfpack Country. Next year is now.

The souped-up North Carolina State basketball team clinched its right to the No. 1 place with a convincing 76-64 conquest of third-ranked Marquette Monday night in the finals of the NCAA championship tournament.

A year ago, Coach Norman Sloan and his troops finished 27-0 but had to settle for nothing headier than the Atlantic Coast Conference championship because the NCAA slapped them with a year's probation for alleged recruiting irregularities.

The Wolfpack was burned in the scramble for a budding superstar from Shelby, N.C. named David Thompson. Postseason competition was forbidden.

So, while mighty UCLA added a seventh straight jewel to its championship collection last year, North Carolina State watched on television at home—and waited.

For better than 17 minutes, the Wolfpack and Warriors met on even terms. Marquette led by a point, 28-27.

Then, in 53 blazing seconds, aided by two technical fouls against wily Marquette Coach Al McGuire, North Carolina State scored 10 straight points to zoom into a nine-point lead.

McGuire was later to say, "I cost us a game with those two technicals. That gave them two five-point plays."

The 10 points included two layups by 7-foot-4 Tom Burleson, a basket by Phil Spence, and four Thompson free throws.

It was 39-30 at the half and 54-33 after less than six minutes of the second half. Marquette never got closer than nine points after that and the suspense was gone.

All that remained was the final score and North Carolina State's 28th straight victory in a 30-1 season.

The Wolfpack, which figured to have the better bench, used only seven players, Thompson and guard Mo Rivers going the full 40 minutes.

Sloan explained, "We called upon a very few for a great deal. It wasn't that we lacked confidence in the others."

Shooting statistics graphically told the story Monday night—56.5 per cent for the Wolfpack and a chilly 36 for the Warriors.

Thompson's 21 points, 16 by the 5-foot-7 Monte Towe, and 14 each by Burleson and Rivers led North Carolina State. Burleson also blocked seven shots and had 11 rebounds.

Marquette, 26-5, got a super game from Maurice Lucas, 21 points and 13 rebounds and 12 points and 11 rebounds from freshman Bo Ellis.

North Carolina State's quickness brought 12 steals, three each by Thompson, Rivers, and sturdy Tim Stoddard, who added eight points and seven rebounds. They put him, Burleson and Towe on the All-Tournament team along with Bill Walton of UCLA and Marquette's Lucas.

Webster Is College Loop Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Morgan State's Marvin Webster, who carries basketball's most engaging nickname—"The Human Eraser"—today was named College Division Player of the Year by The Associated Press.

Webster, who led Morgan State to the championship of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's college division tournament, was a lopsided winner in balloting of sports writers and broadcasters across the country.

He received 63 ballots in The AP voting, finishing far ahead of West Georgia's Clarence Walker, who was second with 18. Next came Leonard Robinson of Tennessee with 17 votes. Locomotive College's Rich Henninger received two votes and Steve Platt of Huntington, Aaron James of Grambling, Bruce Baer of Defiance, Tom Jones of Wisconsin-Green Bay, Jerald Cunningham of Kentucky State, Jim Thordson of St. Joseph's, Ind., and Gene Ford of Muskingum had one vote each.

Webster, a 7-foot junior, averaged 21.4 points a game and led the NCAA college division rebounders with 740 for the season, an average of 22.4 a game. He also blocked 249 shots.

Named the Most Valuable Player in the Mid-East Conference, Webster connected on 56 per cent of his shots. His 707 points was a single season record for Morgan State and it increased his three-year career total to 1,567 points, another record.

Pro scouts consider Webster a sure-fire prospect, second only to UCLA's Bill Walton. "The consensus is that if he decides to claim himself as a hardship case to play pro basketball," said one scout, "then he will be the number two draft choice."

Logan Elm Baseball Program Has Young Look This Year

It will be a rebuilding baseball year at Logan Elm High School with six lettermen, only one senior, returning from last year's Scioto Valley Conference championship team which compiled a 14-2 overall record on the season.

The Braves will be in their second year as a Class AA school and it will be the first baseball competition in the Mid-State League, although the Braves compiled an 8-0 mark in the Mid-State Summer League last year.

"This is one of the youngest teams we have ever fielded and we may be starting four or five freshmen and sophomores," Logan Elm coach Vic Pontius stated.

"The success of our season will depend upon how well the few lettermen lead and carry the team until the younger, less experienced players can come on. Another important factor will be pitching," coach Pontius commented. "None of our pitchers have had experience in spring varsity competition."

Returning lettermen for the Braves are: Mark Justus, senior, 1B-3B, 3 year letterman and All-SVC; Greg Justus, junior, catcher, 2-year letterman and SVC honorable mention; Scott Pontius, junior, SS, 2-year letterman and SVC honorable mention; Derek Morris, junior, P-OF; Steve Rawlins, sophomore, 3B-P; and Jeff Reichelderfer, sophomore, 2B-C.

Players back from Mid-State Summer League competition are: Rob Black, sophomore, OF; Tim Justus, freshman, P; and Randy Pontius, freshman, OF-1B-P.

Candidates out for the first time or up from last season's junior varsity are: Ron Stevens, senior, OF; Ted Penwell, junior, OF-2B; and Don King, junior, OF-1B.

Coach Pontius feels that additional help will come from freshmen and sophomore groups as the season progresses.

Logan Elm will be coming out of one tough league, the SVC, only to be moving into another strong circuit. Coach Pontius feels that his Braves will probably carry a "dark horse" label in the Mid-State.

Derek Morris, who had been counted on as being the Braves number one pitcher, is currently in the hospital and his availability for the season is questionable.

It will be a new look at the Braves' ball park this season. A new chain link outfield fence, financed by donations

OHSAA Not Making Money On Sports

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A record 104,237 paid their way into the Ohio High School Basketball Tournament last week, grossing more than $260,000.

Still, teams receive only $400 for each regional tournament game and $600 for each state tournament contest, plus expenses.

So where does all the money go?

"We're not hoarding it, as some fans think," replied Commissioner Harold A. Meyer of the governing Ohio High School Athletic Association.

"Being a non-profit, tax-exempt organization, we have to file a report yearly to the Internal Revenue Service," Meyer said.

"If we did make much money, we'd soon lose that status," said the leader of the voluntary body that rules Ohio's scholastic sports program.

The OHSAA, in fact, has lost money the last two fiscal years, $29,000 in 1971-72 and $102,000 in 1972-73.

"Our building renovation last year set us back. It cost $78,000," Meyer

Edmonton Tops

Jersey Knights

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — The Jersey Knights, who were mathematically eliminated from the World Hockey Association playoffs, didn't go out with a bang.

"I don't think we came at them strong enough for an important game like this," said Jersey Player-coach Harry Howell. "Anytime you have only 18 shots, you're not playing aggressive hockey."

Goalie Ian Wilkie, who played with the Jersey franchise last year when it was known as the New York Raiders, stopped 17 of those shots and led the Edmonton Oilers to a 4-1 victory Monday night.

The New York Yankees will help the tigers open their 1974 baseball season in Detroit April 9.

Catcher Ted Simmons of the St. Louis Cardinals had a 19-game hitting streak last season.

Pitching Occupies Aspromonte

TUCSON, Ohio (AP)—"It's like a see-saw...one day two guys are on top, and the next day they're down and the other two guys are up," said Cleveland Indian Manager Ken Aspromonte, trying to explain his pitching problems.

Aspromonte was talking about Bob Johnson, Mike Kekich, Milt Wilcox and Dick Bosman, who are fighting for the two remaining starting jobs on the Tribe pitching staff.

Johnson gave up seven hits and five runs in six innings during Monday's 8-6 loss to the Chicago Cubs in Cactus League baseball. Johnson walked four and struck out three.

Kekich allowed six hits and three runs in three innings, walking one and striking out three.

"This thing is getting ridiculous," Aspromonte said. "I'm disappointed, very disappointed because this is March 25 and nobody is grabbing the bull by the horns and running with it."

Aspromonte said that prior to Monday's game Johnson and Kekich had the edge on Bosman and Wilcox.

"But now, I've got to say that Wilcox and Bosman have moved ahead without even taking the mound."

The Tribe field boss didn't bother to hide his dissatisfaction with Johnson.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — On April 6, the American Broadcasting Company is taking its first plunge into the wild, woolly and often financially cruel world of rock concert-giving in hope of making many bucks.

Called "California Jam," the live concert will feature eight acts, last 12-count 'em 12—hours and take place at the Ontario Motor Speedway, located about 50 miles east of Los Angeles.

The speedway is an appropriate site, since Bob Shanks, ABC's man in charge, says the concert is a trial run. If it hits the fiscal retaining wall, ABC may never try it again. The mammoth musical blast isn't being broadcast live, but parts of it eventually may appear on the network's "In Concert" series, although that isn't definite yet, said Shanks, an ABC vice-president.

"It's really designed as a live event," he said, adding that it wasn't cooked up with the primary idea of getting it on television.

"It was a natural outgrowth of the 'In Concert' series, but our basic aim was to get into the rock promotion business," he explained.

ABC is taking no chances on unknown names in its first rock concert venture. The acts, all pop music heavies, are Deep Purple, Emerson, Lake and Palmer, Black Sabbath, Seals and Crofts, Black Oak Arkansas, Rare Earth and Earth, Wind and Fire.

The network's Entertainment Division, which is putting on the show, declines to say how much the whole thing will cost — reliable estimates put it way above $29.95 — but it won't be a low-cost venture for the audience.

There's a $10-per-head tab for those buying tickets in advance, while those who choose to pay at the gate will have to cough up $15.

Even though they'll be getting a show that runs from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., what makes Shanks think rock fans will pay that kind of money to travel that far and stay that long?

"A lot of these things we don't know yet because we've never done this kind of thing before," he conceded. "What our experts tell us, about the lower advance prices, is that it was done to give some kind of incentive to buy tickets ahead of time."

Voyage Post Wins Latonia

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP)—Voyage won the mile featured race at Latonia Race Track in 1:42.4 Monday.

The winner returned $32.00, $5.60 and $2.80. Lester's Jester returned $2.80 and $2.20 to place while Debonair Host paid $2.40 to show. Mary Chimes and Hesourtet formed a 7-10 daily double to pay $126.00. Attendance was 3,831. The crowd wagered $4,039.49.

Two Resignations Accepted; One Employed By Teays Valley Board

The Teays Valley Board of Education approved two resignations of teachers effective at the close of the current school year. The board also approved one medical leave of absence and employed a replacement for the balance of the school term.

Resignations were accepted from Sandra Carns, second grade teacher at Ashville Elementary and Maisie Griner, sixth grade teacher at Walnut Elementary.

Mrs. Angie Rinehart was placed on medical leave of absence for the balance of the 1973-74 school year. Her resignation of a supplemental contract to coach girls' track was also accepted by the board. Miss Cynthia Fulton was employed for the balance of the term to teach girls' physical education and health. Miss Fulton was also employed to coach the girls' track team. Her employment was effective as of March 18.

Supplemental substitute teacher lists 13 and 14 as submitted by the county office were approved.

Requests for professional workshops were approved by the board as follows: Ray Noecker, tractor trouble shooting contest, Springfield, March 15; Orland Cooper or Robert Jenkins, Right To Read Conference, Columbus, April 25 and 26; Orland Cooper, Title I Conference, Columbus, May 7-9.

Approval was granted for payment to David Barnett and Noah Paxton for supervision of the extracurricular use of the Walnut School gymnasium.

The board approved the transfer of $1,000 from the contingency fund to the D-7 fund. The transfer to the D-7, other equipment, fund will cover the cost of a new key meter control gas pump.

Approval was granted to the Scioto Men's Club for use of the Scioto School grounds for a consignment sale in early April.

Action was taken on a personal leave request and a resolution endorsed for a tentative trip by a group of high school students to Washington D. C. under the supervision of the American History teachers. The students will tour the national capital, Gettysburg and several other places of historical interest during the Easter vacation. The parents of the students will be responsible for the financing of the trip and three other adults will chaperone the students.

Bids were considered for the language laboratory transistor portable two-way communication. The bid was awarded to the Electro Systems, Inc., Columbus. Bid considerations were made on window replacement at each of the three elementary buildings and awarded to the Nuvue Company, Cincinnati. The company has a representative in this area.

Mrs. Marilyn Pettibone was placed on the salary schedule as a regular employee for the balance of the current school year. Mrs. Pettibone has been working as a substitute custodian for a part-time employee who had resigned and the board agreed to employ her in this position.

Local superintendent Benis Lutz brought the board up to date on the land adjacent to the Lockbourne Air Force Base. The board had applied for the land for educational purposes and the federal government can assign it to the district. No official word has been received yet on the application. Lutz also informed the board that no final approval has not been granted on the application for an additional unit of vocational agriculture.

The board and superintendent reviewed the document governing professional negotiations as was established last year and made minor revisions in the procedure. The first list of items for discussion have been received from the teachers' association. Meetings between the board and the negotiation committee will begin in the near future.

Several items were discussed by the board and the principals from each of the schools in the district were present to report on matters of significance at their respective buildings. The board approved the course of study election as proposed by the principals and guidance counselors.

Approval was also granted to the primary, intermediate and junior high EMR classes and the primary learning disabilities classes to attend the Shrine circus under the sponsorship of the Jaycees.

Approval was granted to the career education class sponsored by Ohio University to use the high school building in April. The class involves teachers from all over the county who attended a workshop last summer and are required to meet once a month as a continuation of the workshop credit.

The bond issue and materials were briefly discussed. The board will adopt a resolution of necessity in the near future.

In final action, the board passed a resolution to send letters of commendation to the following persons: Robert Hoover for having been named coach of the year and for his overall display of leadership and sportsmanship; the basketball team and to those boys named to all-league positions; Craig Pontious for being named to the all-district and the Bob Bowsher award; Fred Brobst and Drexel Poling and the band members for the superior rating at the district contest and their eligibility for the state contest in early May; Miss Darlene Freeman, choral director, for receiving a two rating; Charles Kerns and the Drama Club for their fine production of "Dracula"; Sandy Beach for winning the county spelling contest.

No one was injured in the mishap, but a considerable amount of damage was done to the store front.

Victim's Bicycle Recovered

The bicycle of 15-year-old David Wayne Duffey, Kingston, who was killed in a hit-skip accident Saturday, was turned into the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department Monday.

A passing motorist called Sheriff Radcliff stating he found the bike lying in the road Saturday night. The motorist's reaction was that the bike might have fallen from a vehicle, so he picked it up to avoid a possible accident.

The Bureau of Criminal Investigation, London, is processing and examining the bicycle.

Sheriff Dwight Radcliff is still investigating the incident.

Board Views Design Of New School

An artist's conception of the design for the proposed middle school was presented by architects Kellam and Foley at the Westfall Board meeting Monday. The board met in an extension session of the regular monthly meeting.

The principals from the various schools in the district were present at the meeting with evaluations of their staff members.

Approval was granted for 4-H clubs to use the Jackson building for meetings. The Jackson grounds were also approved for use by the youth baseball league.

Mrs. Norma Feldman was granted half day personal leave.

The board held a discussion on the proposed bond issue for the middle school. The levy would call for $1.67 million or an average of four mills over a 22 year period. The middle school is to be built at the site of the high school.

Brochures will be made available for interested persons and several letters mailed explaining the need for the new school. Door to door campaigning will also be conducted.

Shaul To Testify In LaFatch Trial

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Commerce Department Director Dennis Shaul was expected to be an early witness in the extortion trial of Akron businessman Anthony P. LaFatch.

The trial began Monday after U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary denied a motion to move the trial to Cleveland and ordered participants to refrain from speaking to news reporters.

LaFatch has pleaded innocent to six counts of extortion. He was charged in the alleged solicitation of a $50,000 bribe from the Realty National Corp. of Columbus in exchange for influence he claimed to have in an Ohio Department of Commerce decision. Shaul, formerly of Akron, has admitted he told LaFatch about department action on a Realty National stock issue. But, Shaul said he was unaware of LaFatch's motives and would have given the same information to any businessman.

LaFatch was indicted by a federal grand jury in November after a five-month probe by the U.S. Justice Department. He was arrested about a year ago after FBI agents confiscated $50,000 in marked bills from his Florida home.

Before denying the defense motion to change the location of the trial to Cleveland because of pretrial news publicity, Kinneary questioned 40 prospective jurors about their reading habits.

Chicken Deaths Cost Producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says Mississippi poultrymen will have to pay the costs of destroying millions of chickens tainted by excess traces of a farm pesticide.

Government officials and the poultrymen agreed Monday to kill and bury the birds, found to be contaminated with the chemical dieldrin.

Representatives of the broiler chicken industry were told there currently is no way for the federal government to compensate producers for losses incurred in destroying the affected birds.

He quizzed eight jurors privately in his chambers who claimed to have read or heard news reports related to the case. Later, he dismissed five of the jurors.

After six men and six women were sworn as jurors, the judge called attorneys for both sides to his bench, and in a hushed conversation, denied the motion to move the trial. His decision was not announced publicly at the time.

Think Peach, Plum Crops Wiped Out

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Below freezing weekend temperatures apparently destroyed peach and plum crops in central and southern Ohio, Ohio Agriculture Director Gene Abercrombie said Monday.

He estimated the loss of the fruit for the season would run as high as $400,000.

"Part of the fruit crop may be all right in the northern part of the state," Abercrombie said. The north did not experience the warm weather that other sections of the state felt earlier this month. That weather started trees blooming earlier in the south.

"I would say that probably from central Ohio south, the peach and plum crop is probably gone. Both of these are early bloomers, and with the unseasonably warm weather about two weeks ago, the buds were open," he said.

Abercrombie said this was the fifth consecutive year of partial or complete loss of the crop.

The snow before the cold was good fortune for wheat and oats, Abercrombie said.

"We are fortunate that we had this snow. Any oats and legumes had the benefit of the snow cover. It's like putting an extra blanket on your bed," he said.
